

hand, influenced by the increase of Nazi power in Germany following Hitler's army purge and his coup in Austria, decided the time had come to speed up the Anglo-Italian talks with the idea of smoothing a way for negotiations with Germany and eventually a general European appeasement. Chamberlain regarded the diplomatic bargaining advocated by Eden as a waste of time. His stand is supported by the older members of the government.

Overruling the foreign secretary, Chamberlain, it is understood, handed Grandi a document Friday, indicating he is prepared to waive all conditions involving Spain and Ethiopia previously laid down by Britain as a starting point for negotiations with Rome.

Eden, who was not advised of Chamberlain's intentions, protested after Grandi left, and insisted on today's emergency cabinet meeting to thresh out the matter.

The ministers met three times. A special session of the cabinet was held in the afternoon. It was followed by a ministerial conference at 7:30 p. m. and another cabinet meeting at 10 p. m. Eden announced his resignation at the second meeting.

He remained only four minutes and sped back to the foreign office to draft his letter of resignation.

The announcement of Eden's resignation was not made until after the final meeting. A brief statement, which did not mention Eden's or Cranborne's successors, was issued.

Gets Letter of Resignation.

Eden's letter of resignation, stressing "far-reaching differences" between himself and Chamberlain on foreign policy, was handed to Chamberlain late tonight. It brought the customary reply regretting the decision to resign. It was revealed Eden rejected a suggestion that he take some other government post. He intends to take a long vacation abroad.

Eden probably will go to Buckingham palace tomorrow to hand back the seal of his office to King George VI. He is expected to make a personal statement to the house of commons afterward. He will speak from a back bench.

Chamberlain will then move adjournment, and make his own statement. This will be followed by debate. Leaders of opposition parties, privy councillors and other members of parliament will take part in the discussions.

The rare event of a cabinet meeting on a Sunday attracted thousands to Downing street. The government has met only five times on a Sunday in the last twelve years.

Stand in Bitter Cold.

Throughout the afternoon and until late tonight crowds lined the sidewalks in the bitter cold. Foot and mounted police kept them under control, while police reserves stood by to be ready for any emergency.

There was one minor scuffle between the police and communists who attempted to distribute pamphlets denouncing Chamberlain's efforts to conciliate dictators.

Whenever Eden appeared in his trips between No. 10 Downing street and the foreign office he was greeted by waves of cheering and hand-clapping. Some cried, "Good old Eden."

ITALY HAILS EDEN RESIGNATION AS RETREAT OF FOE

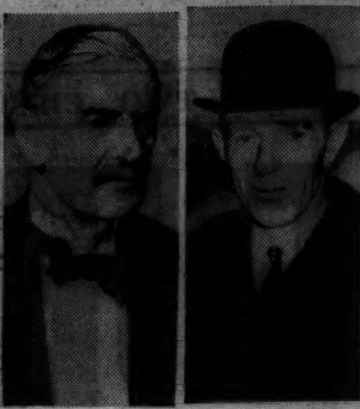

ROME, Feb. 20. (AP)—Fascist tonight hailed Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's resignation from the British cabinet as the retreat of Italy's arch enemy.

Regarded as the personification of British anti-Fascism and the spirit of the league of nations, few foreign statesmen ever have been so hated in Italy. None was ever more consistently lampooned in the Fascist press.

Italians never were permitted to forget Eden's leadership in the league of nations' imposition of economic penalties against Italy as punishment for her invasion of Ethiopia.

TEXT OF CHAMBERLAIN LETTER IN REPLY TO EDEN'S RESIGNATION

LONDON, Feb. 20. (AP)—The text of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's letter of reply to the resignation of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden follows:

"My dear Anthony:

"It is with the most profound regret, shared by all our colleagues, that I have received your intimation of your decision to resign the great office which you have administered with such distinction ever since you have occupied it."

"This regret is all the greater because such differences as have arisen between us in no way concern our ultimate aims or fundamentals of policy."

"The decision which you find yourself unable to accept is whether the present moment is appropriate for commencement of Anglo-Italian conversations."

"We had hoped you would not feel this of sufficient importance to necessitate a parting which is painful to all of us."

"There has been so large a measure of agreement between us, not only on fundamental policy, but on many practical applications of it, that I had hoped until a very short time ago that any difference of outlook whereto you allude would not be found incompatible with our further collaboration."

"Since, however, your letter shows that unhappily this is not the case, I have no alternative but to accept your decision."

"I will, accordingly, submit your resignation to his majesty the king for his approval."

"I should like to thank you very warmly for your loyal, helpful comradeship during all the time we have worked together, and assure you nothing which has happened has impaired my admiration of your gifts and my affection for yourself."

"Yours sincerely,
"NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN."

Poland's Radios 'Noisy'; Hitler's Speech Drowned

WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 20. (AP)—Radio reception of Adolf Hitler's reichstag speech was unsuccessful today in Poland. A strange, motor-like noise drowned the speech on the long wave and a peculiar whistling sound interfered on short wave lengths. The noises stopped when the speech was over.

protect the German people and the world will see with lightninglike rapidity that this reich, people and army are fanatically aglow with only one thought, the Fatherland," he cried.

Touching lightly on the conflict which led to the reorganization of the cabinet and the army command on Feb. 4, Hitler said that former Minister of War Werner von Blomberg's health was responsible for his retirement. He expressed thanks to Gen. Werner von Fritsch and other generals who helped to build up the army and through their retirement made room for younger officers.

Officers Use Nazi Salute.

Incidentally, the new chiefs of the army, who sat on the government benches with members of the cabinet, exchanged the formal Nazi salute with other officers in the opera house, dropping the old military salute.

Hitler assured his audience there is no friction between the Nazi party and army.

"Ever since I assumed power in 1933, National Socialism (Nazism) has owned the whole of Germany—completely and absolutely," he said.

"There is no institution in this state which is not in the Nazi party. In these five years I have made the nation Nazi and have created an organization which guarantees the party's survival for all times to come."

"In this reich every man who holds a responsible post is a Nazi. Every institution is under the orders of the supreme political command and ready to stand up for and defend Nazi Germany. If necessary, to the last breath. There is nobody in this state who doubts that I am the responsible leader of this reich."

The fuhrer at this point stressed the "blind loyalty and obedience" of his army.

Insists He Wants Peace.

He reiterated his assurance that he wants peace, "but I do not want this love of peace to be understood as a weak renunciation or dishonorable cowardice."

Hitler admitted that Germany's economic position is difficult, with 140 persons living on every square kilometer (138 of a square mile) and he taunted the richer countries, especially England.

"If the British empire went to pieces and England were compelled to live on the proceeds of her island, then the English probably would have a better understanding for our difficulties," he said, climaxing this part of the

CZECHS VIEW HITLER'S STAND ON MINORITIES AS HINT OF MEDDLING

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 20. (AP)—Adolf Hitler's speech to the German reichstag was received today with disfavor in official circles of Czechoslovakia, which contains approximately 3,000,000 Germans within her Versailles treaty created borders.

Hitler's inferred reference to the German minority in Czechoslovakia was resented as "interference with the sovereignty of the Czechoslovakian state."

The reichstag speech was broadcast by the official Czechoslovakian Radio company.

speech with a demand for the return of German colonies.

Those who seek to draw Germany back into the league of nations or who think Hitler can be talked into making concessions at conferences or in man to man negotiations were given a cold shoulder. At a time when England, France, and Czechoslovakia have stated definitely that they want to negotiate with Germany, Hitler bluntly said that he considers private talks useless.

Hitler's bitterness at his inability to compel Czechoslovakia to accept terms dictated by Konrad Henlein, leader of Nazi forces in Czechoslovakia, was evident in this statement:

Makes Threat Against Czechs.

"It is unbearable for a proud world power to see its countrymen in bordering states being made to suffer for their loyalty to their mother nation," he cried. "Germany will know how to defend the rights of Germans living on the other side of the border. Those who try to prevent a readjustment with violence will automatically precipitate violence among nations."

"These threats against Czechoslovakia were cheered."

BRITISH CABINET BOWS TO HITLER, FRANCE CHARGES

PARIS, Feb. 20. (AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos were said tonight to have informed Great Britain they considered the resignation of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden a surrender to the Rome-Berlin axis of Fascist collaborators.

Informed circles said France considered it a surrender coming on the heels of Reichsfuhrer Hitler's reichstag speech which singled out the British foreign secretary by name for attack. The French position was said to have been conveyed to Sir Eric Phipps, the British ambassador to Paris.

No Break in Friendship.

An official government spokesman declared, however, that "nothing can change" close Franco-British collaboration.

Diplomatic sources said the French foreign office hoped Eden's personal popularity and support of the house of commons would bring him back into the cabinet quickly to rescue Franco-British diplomacy.

High authorities said it was impossible for France alone to keep her little entente allies (Rumania, Yugoslavia, and Czechoslovakia) close to her skirts and save Czechoslovakia from Nazi pressure.

LORD HALIFAX, FRIEND OF NAZIS, EXPECTED TO BE EDEN'S SUCCESSOR

LONDON, Feb. 20. (AP)—Edward Frederick Lindley Wood, third Viscount Halifax, a recognized friend of Nazi Germany, was believed tonight to be the probable new foreign secretary succeeding Anthony Eden. The lanky 58 year old lord president of the council and house of lords leader is scholarly and almost bald, and has had a distinguished political career.

Lord Halifax was the son of a pious, ale-drinking father who lived to be 94 years old. Like his father, he is devoted to Yorkshire hunting, walking, books, and his inherited estates. He was known in India as the "great sahib" because of his successful viceroyship from 1925 to 1931. During his administration Mahandas K. Gandhi, the leader of India's civil disobedience campaign, was arrested, but the little mystic remained the viceroy's friend. Despite an attempt on his life in 1929 when a bomb wrecked the train coach next to his, Lord Halifax had few enemies in India.

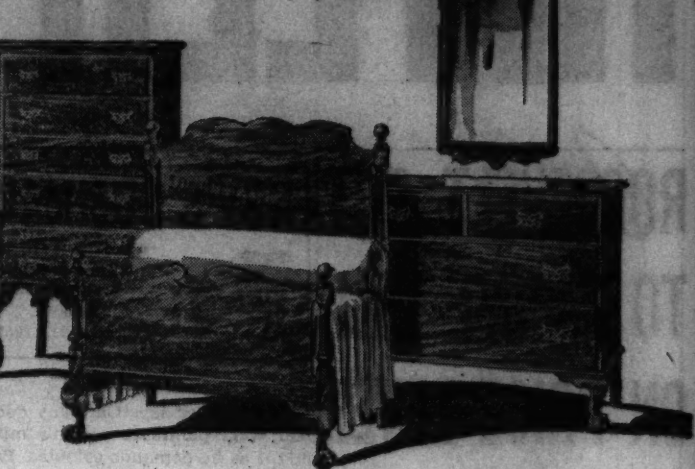

Halifax plays tennis despite the serious handicap of a withered left arm which has been almost useless since birth. He served in France with the Yorkshire Dragoons yeomanry and was mentioned in dispatches for bravery.

The official text of Hitler's speech. The chief interests of French officialdom in the Hitler speech were Der Fuehrer's words on Spain and what was termed a "thinly veiled threat" against Czechoslovakia.

His statement that Germany and Italy stood together behind the Spanish rebel generalissimo, Francisco Franco, was considered here as Hitler's reciprocation for Italy's approval of the recent German advance in Austria.

HITLER'S STAND AGAINST BRITAIN PLEASES ROME

Colonial Demands Held Helpful to Duce.

(Copyright, 1938, by The New York Times.)
ROME, Feb. 20.—Chancellor Hitler's speech was well received here as a whole, and four points about it particularly impressed Italians.

These points were the firmness with which he advanced Germany's colonial demands against Great Britain and the severity with which he spoke of Britain generally, his reaffirmation of Britain's role in the Rome-Berlin axis, his claim that Germany has the right to interfere in defense of German minorities, and the lack of any definite undertaking in respect to the independence of Austria.

British Stand Significant.

Hitler's insistence that it is Great Britain's must satisfy Germany's colonial claims is considered particularly significant in view of the conversations recently begun in London for conclusion of an Italo-British understanding.

The fact that Hitler has taken such a decided attitude against Britain will, it is felt, help the negotiations, because it will convince the British government that there is no present hope of reaching agreement with the other member of the Rome-Berlin axis.

It is thought, in other words, that the plan agreed upon in Berlin by Premier Mussolini and Hitler last September (and which Italy finally was forced to accept) is the first of the two countries of the Rome-Berlin axis to make peace with Britain is beginning to be put into effect.

Remarks Termed Sincere.

Hitler's references to the Rome-Berlin axis could not but make a good impression in Italy, which has based all her foreign policy on the continued duration of Italy-German friendship. It is to be said that all the more the ring of sincerity about them because of his glowing praise of Mussolini.

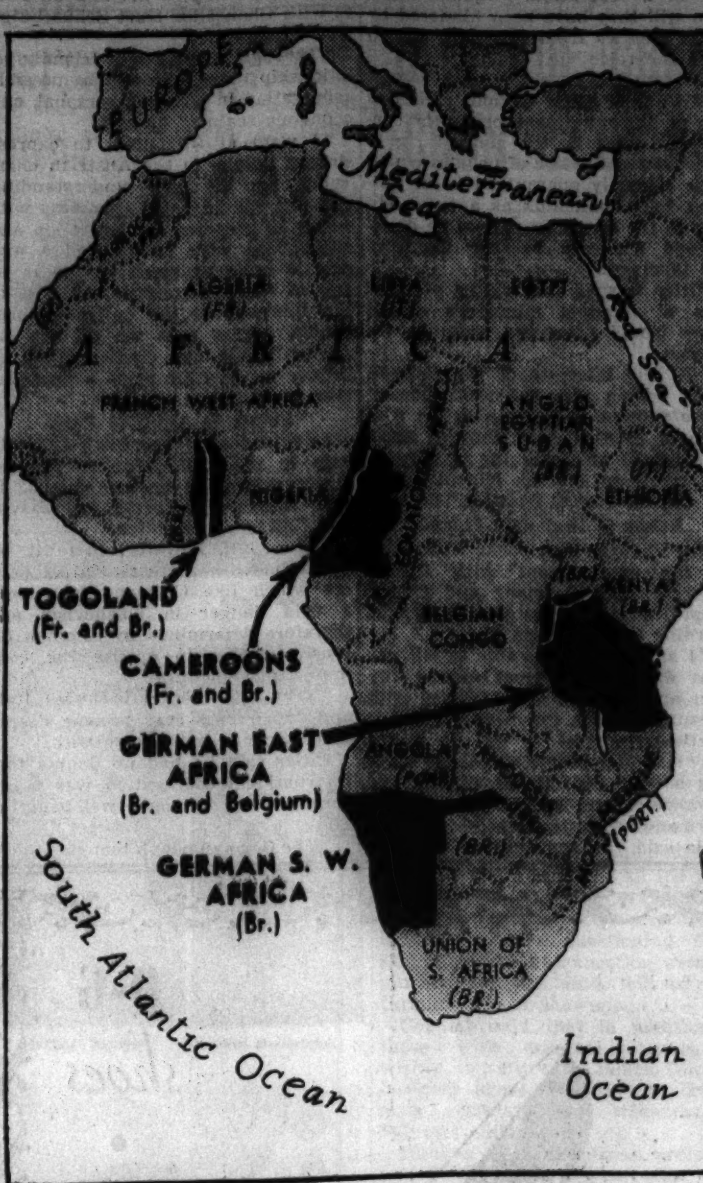

What Hitler had to say about the problem of German minorities did not arouse equally favorable comment in Italy, particularly owing to the status of the Germans in Austria. Germany intends to intervene in defense of the German minorities living in neighboring countries. This presumably includes the German population of Austria, but it is evident that the Rome-Berlin axis would be bound to assume a broadening point if Germany were to interfere actively in Austria.

Hitler's Speech Cheered

in Nazi-Governed Danzig
FREE CITY OF DANZIG, Feb. 20.
—(AP)—All Danzig listened today to Chancellor Adolf Hitler's reichstag speech, which got a warm reception here, with the sponsorship of the rights of Germans, even outside the reich. Danzig, with a Nazi government that practically takes orders from Berlin, made most elaborate preparations to hear the speech. Loudspeakers on automobiles invaded outlying regions of the Danzig district so villagers could hear Dr. Fuhrer's words.

Hitler Wants Lost Colonies Returned

Black areas mark colonies in Africa taken from Germany at the conclusion of the world war. Reichsfuehrer Hitler yesterday demanded that they be returned in a speech before the reichstag that was addressed directly to Great Britain.

HOSTILE TONE OF HITLER SPEECH SHOCKS BRITISH

Hoped for Guarantees of Free Austria.

COPYRIGHT: 1938: By the New York Times.
LONDON, Feb. 20. — The distinct anti-British trend of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech today came as somewhat of a shock here, for many people had expected that in view of Hitler's Austrian triumph it would be of a milder tone.

His failure to state any specific guarantees of Austrian neutrality and his repeated reference to the growing demand for colonies caused disappointment here even to those who have been pressing for an Anglo-German reconciliation.

Though the cabinet critics generally overlooked Hitler's speech in the minds of the British public, it nevertheless drew much interest.

No evening papers are published in London on Sunday, but the morning papers "held open" all day and put special sections on the streets carrying in the full text of the Hitler speech, which also was broadcast in full.

Shaker: Sunday Calm.

In fact, what with the combination of the two events, the average London street corner flared with alarming posters and the usual Sunday calm was shattered by the bawling of newsboys.

Press comment generally was unfavorable, and even the London Times, which of late has been showing a more favorable attitude toward Germany, warns that Britain has a vital interest in the future of Austria and that "if the methods of procedure pursued in Austria are followed to their end" in every case in which Germany cherishes unsatisfied ambitions then they can only end in catastrophic conflict from which Britain would not be able to stand aloof," the Times said editorially.

The temptation to pursue them may grow with success and the vigilance of other nations is unlikely to keep pace with the paper's contentions. "Our own program of rearmament, for example, cannot be relaxed for a moment so long as Europe is liable to sudden spasms when opportunity provides the opening for a stroke of policy. It is not time for provocative speaking or writing, least of all for empty threats. But it is emphatically time when the British government be persistently clear in its own mind of the necessity of the acquisition of the fruits of its own contribution to a settlement in Europe, and about the point at which it is bound to take a stand against pressure."

Hoped for Less Insistence.
The Telegraph, which, like the Times, generally is a staunch supporter of government policy, also saw danger in the Hitler attitude and stressed Hitler's insistence on colonies, a point on which many Britons hoped and expected Hitler would be indefinite.

"It will be interesting to note how that declaration impresses the small but indefatigable clique which is pressing for 'settlement with Germany at all costs, regardless not only

AUSTRIAN NAZIS SHOUT APPROVAL OF HITLER SPEECH

Police Use Clubs to Rout 1,000 Paraders.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
VIENNA, Austria, Feb. 26.—A down with an iron fist. The favorite speeches of the Nazis broke loose today and here and in many provincial centers riotously celebrated Reich-sfuehrer Hitler's speech to the reichstag in Berlin.

The most serious disturbances took place shortly before 11 p. m. when a crowd of 1,000 Nazis marched up to the Fatherland Front government headquarters. Without warning, police and militia streamed out of doorways and the back streets and set upon the crowd with truncheons and the flats of sabers. The Nazis made no effort to fight back but scattered wildly in all directions.

The police earlier had made no efforts to check the demonstrations which broke out all over the capital.
"The trouble," were the orders from the government, so the police confined themselves to preventing crowds from massing in the heart of the town.

Chant Against Jews.

Marching in small groups which cannot have totaled less than 10,000, the Nazis poured through the streets shouting, "Hell Hitler!" "Sig Heil," and "Out with Jews."

This struck terror into the thousands of Jews living in Vienna, and they disappeared from the streets during the demonstrations. Rumors that Jews were beaten by Nazi gangs or that shop windows of Jewish stores were smashed could not be

Until after dark the Nazis had the streets to themselves, then small groups of Fatherland Front supporters, mostly students, began staging counter demonstrations to cries of "Austria," "Long live Schuschnigg" [Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg], and "red, white and red until we are dead" [the colors of Austria's flag].

Scuffles Here and There.
For the most part the crowds were good natured, but as the evening wore on the memories of Hitler's oratory were fortified with beer and scuffles between Nazis and Austrian patriots took place here and there.

The black coated militia of the Fatherland Front, who look a little like Hitler's Schutzstaffel guards, on more than one occasion came to the support of the civilian demonstrators for the Fatherland Front. Over-enthusiastic Nazis were led around corners by grim looking militiamen and massaged before being turned loose.

These incidents apparently were symptomatic of the growing impatience among the fighting units of the Fatherland Front with the velvet glove tactics of the government toward the Nazis.

Eye Mussolini for Sign.
If the resignation of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden from the British cabinet today means that England is going to come to terms with Mussolini and that Il Duce is prepared to sell out to Germany, a really dramatic situation may develop here overnight.

In this connection there are interesting reports from Prague, which is strangely calm in the face of Hitler's fiery speech, that England and France are preparing energetic measures to maintain the existing equilibrium of central Europe.

As far as can be gathered in Vienna the government is waiting for indications from Paris, London, and Rome before making up its mind on how to deal with the Nazi problem here.

Disappointment is felt in patriotic circles over Hitler's speech, which failed to give Austria assurances which were expected. The Schuschnigg government, it appears, will pursue a policy of trying to stall for time until the international situation is clearer.

GERMANY DOES NOT FEAR WAR, HITLER WARNS

Abstract of Fuehrer's Talk to Reichstag.

collapse of the German army. Hitler turned to the subject of colonies. He said "although Germany has achieved the impossible in managing to get along within her present borders so far, the world cannot expect us to go on forever from year to year."

"Therefore, there will be an increasing demand for those colonial possessions which Germany did not take away from other powers and which for these powers today are practically useless—yet for our own people seem indispensable."

Offers of loans instead of colonies are not wanted, Hitler said. He did not state precisely, however, what Germany expects in the way of colonies nor mention any definite plan or new understanding between European powers.

Hitler Distrusts Conferences. "You will not expect me to express myself on the subject of individual international plans which momentarily seem to be arousing more or less interest among various governments. They are too uncertain and too unclear to permit me to take a position regarding them."

"I have a deep-seated distrust for conferences."

Hitler also reiterated at some length his dislike for the league of nations and spurned any suggestion Germany might yet return to the league.

He was particularly scornful of the league's attitude toward colonies and suggested colonial empires existing at present did not arise through a series of democratic plebiscites among the natives, "but through naked, brutal force."

Germany does not intend to let itself be dragged into any one else's quarrels nor does it intend to deny the existence of obvious facts.

Recognizes Manchukuo. Germany, therefore, "will recognize Manchukuo. If I have decided to take this step it is because I want to draw a clear line between the policy of fantastic incomprehensibilities and a policy of sober respect for actual facts."

Let me repeat again that Germany—especially after the departure of Italy from the league—does not even dream of ever going back into that institution."

He said, however, that rejection of the league did not mean unwillingness to cooperate with other powers.

Soviet Russia, Hitler declared, is the only state with which Nazi Germany has no desire to cooperate, for Soviet Russia is trying to bolshevize the world.

If England was really anxious to defend her status quo, Hitler remarked, she would energetically oppose the bolshevization of other countries.

"For such bolshevized regions are then no longer self-governing states with a national life of their own, but only sections of the Moscow revolutionary center."

"I know Mr. Eden (British foreign secretary) does not share this view. Stalin (dictator of Soviet Russia) does and openly admits it."

Elaborating his theme in connection with Japan's war in China, Hitler said: "I am afraid Japanese defeat in east Asia never would benefit Europe, or America, but solely bolshevist Soviet Russia."

"I do not think China spiritually or materially strong enough to resist a bolshevist offensive alone. But I do believe even the most sweeping Japanese victory would be infinitely less dangerous for civilization and the general peace of the world than a bolshevist victory."

Hitler said Germany remained anxious for a resumption of peaceful relations between Japan and China and believed there might have been peace before this if others—"just as in the case of Ethiopia"—hadn't meddled in it.

In any case "Germany, in defense against communism, will always regard the value of Japan as an element of security."

Seeks No Land in East Asia. "Germany has no territorial interests in east Asia. It has an understandable desire to engage in commerce and trade. This does not put us under any obligation to take sides with either party. But it does oblige us to recognize that a bolshevist victory would annihilate the last possibilities (of trade and commerce) in that region."

Referring to the expulsion of Germany from Tsingtao during the world war "by coalition of white and yellow peoples," Hitler rejected in advance "any invitation to return to eastern Asia." He said Germany likewise has no territorial interests in Spain.

"Much has been said and even more written in recent years about the basic differences between France and England on the one hand and Germany on the other," Hitler continued. "It is not exactly clear to me just what these differences are supposed to be. Germany, as I more than once have emphasized, has no further territorial demands against France in Europe. It is our hope that with the return of the Saar the period of Franco-German territorial disputes is definitely ended."

Says Press Endangers Peace. "Nor has Germany any quarrel whatsoever with England—aside from our colonial desires. For any remotely conceivable conflict there is no visible basis. The only thing which poisons, therefore burdens, relations between these states is the almost unendurable newspaper agitation which is conducted in those countries (France and England) under the slogan of freedom of individual opinion."

"As the international press campaign naturally must not be regarded as an element of pacification but as widely endangering the peace of peoples, I have also decided to put into effect those expansions of the German defense force that will give us assurance that the wild threats of war against Germany may not one fine day be converted into bloody use of force."

Speaks of German Minorities. Turning to the problem of German minorities on German borders, Hitler said: "Two states lying at our borders comprise more than 10,000,000 Germans. Until 1866 they had been united with the entire German people in a federation. Against their own will they have been hindered by peace treaties from becoming united with the reich."

"Separation from the reich cannot lead to their being without rights as far as their national origin is concerned. That is the general rights of self-determination of peoples which were solemnly guaranteed us in Wilson's fourteen points as a pre-condition to the armistice cannot be disregarded suddenly because Germans are involved!"

Hitler warned that unless persecution of national minorities ceased there would some day come an explosion.

"To the interests of the German reich belong also the protection of those peoples of German origin who are not in a position through their own efforts to secure for themselves the rights to general human, political and ideological freedom," he said.

Refers to Deal with Poland. The Fuehrer then spoke with pride of the arrangement with Poland whereby both Germany and Poland respect others' rights even in Danzig. Turning to Austria, he said:

"I am happy to be able to tell you that during the recent days a further appeasement was achieved with a country which for many reasons is particularly close to us. It is not only a similar people but above all, it has a long and similar history and common culture that tie the reich and German-Austria together."

He said the workings of the July 11, 1936, Austrian-German agreement were not as they should have been and because of this his talk on Feb. 12 with Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg was necessary.

"Through a closer and friendly relationship there now will be possible cooperation in political, personal, and economic realms," he said.

"I want at this point to express sincere thanks to the Austrian chancellor for his deep understanding and the warmhearted readiness with which he accepted my invitation and endeavored with me to find a way that is quite as much in the interests of the two countries as it is in the interests of the entire German people, whose sons we all are, no matter where our cradles stood. I believe we thereby made a contribution to European peace."

Points to Anti-Red Pact. As evidence of Germany's desire to help in the pacification of Europe, Hitler pointed to German friendship with Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, and "many other states."

"Above all, however, there is cooperation with those two great powers which like Germany have seen a wild danger in bolshevism and therefore determined by common defensive action to oppose the communist movement."

"That this cooperation with Italy and Japan may ever become deeper and deeper is my sincere wish."

Hitler said he had no doubts that international cooperation was necessary for the common well-being of all.

"The German population essentially is not warlike but soldierly; that is, it does not want war but also does not fear it. It loves peace but equally loves its honor and its freedom."

Hitler then went into his peroration on the greatness of the German people.

"If a nation of 140 people to the square kilometer, without great wealth, without gold reserves; without colonies, and bled white for 15 years has accomplished the miracle of conquering unemployment and keeping up, nay improving, its standard of living through its own efforts, then I say that those who, despite great economic advantages, are unable to solve their own employment problems should keep their mouths shut."

Hitler said the situation in Spain was similar "to what we experienced ourselves here in Germany," and continued:

"And, exactly as in Germany, so also in this case, the democratic international is to be found on the side of the bolshevist incendiaries."

"In the bolshevization of Spain the German government would see not only an element for disquieting Europe but a disturbance to the European balance of power. For, once this land [Spain] had become a subsection of the Moscow central office, the danger would exist of further spreading this plague of destruction and of annihilation with consequences which we could then under no circumstances face with equanimity."

"We are happy, therefore, that our anti-bolshevist attitude is shared with a third state. German and Italian relationship is based upon a community of attitudes, both regarding the life of the state as well as a common defense against the dangers that threaten us internationally."

Here Hitler asserted that, as a result, Germany and Italy were acting in Spain in the same manner.

Life Begins At 40

Built a Good Income Out of a Jar of Jam

HOPE LESLIE— famous for her "Pantry Shelf" Marmade

"Many Ways for Women, Over 40 to Make Money as I did," says Hope Leslie

FOR YEARS, Hope Leslie was music critic for a New York newspaper. Then the paper ceased publication. A year passed. No new opening developed. Her money was running low. Gifts to friends were, by necessity, homemade—jars of a fruit marmalade, made by an heirloom recipe from Spain.

The food buyer of a New York department store tasted the fragrant, amber-colored jam—ordered ten dozen jars, to be delivered in 10 days. It was a big order for Miss Leslie and her tiny kitchenette. But she filled it. And in 3 days every jar was sold.

Today, Miss Leslie's homemade marmalade is a specialty of Wanamaker's big New York store. 600 jars are sold each month.

Twelve hours a day she's on the job. Morning and evening she cooks, cools, spoons and seals. During the business day, she is on hand at the store—selling her delicacies.

Opportunity Often Comes AFTER 40 "Mine is just one of the many ways for women over 40 to make money," Miss Leslie says. "I love it. And I'm thankful every day I have the energy and stamina it takes."

They Tell You How to be Energetic, Well—AFTER 40

Knows Her Writing is Going to Succeed Dear Life Begins: I used to have all the pep in the world. Then, suddenly, when I was around 40, my health went to pieces. I was told there was nothing wrong with me except "nervous stomach," but I was miserable and I used to have long crying spells.

I'd heard of Fleischmann's Yeast and began eating it. After a while, I began to feel so good! My "nervous stomach" quieted down. The indigestion, which had really haunted me, went away.

Lately I've started writing stories and verse. I've found some interest shown in my things—and I know in my heart that I'm going to succeed.—DOROTHY B. LEE Earns Bonus—Buys New Car Dear Life Begins: A personal loss made me give up my dry-goods store and take a job as outside salesman, thinking it might help me get hold of myself.

But I seemed to get more depressed and run-down. Boils came out on the back of my neck and indigestion made me a fussy eater.

A neighbor told me about Fleischmann's Yeast and my wife got me the cakes. In a few short weeks, I didn't have any more indigestion or depression. It was then the boils cleared up, too. That meant a lot to me, as no salesman wants to go around decorated with them.

We were able to buy a car—with the bonus I earned because of the way my sales have increased. GEORGE FRANK

Slow Digestion Can Make You Feel Older Than Your Age

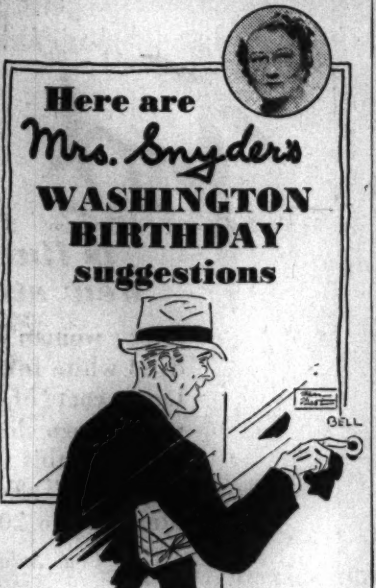

A scantier, weaker flow of gastric juices is often responsible for slower digestion in people over 40.

To help digestion become more vigorous and youthful again, eat Fleischmann's fresh Yeast. Its millions of tiny, live yeast plants in each cake aid in quickening and strengthening the flow of digestive juices.

Fleischmann's Yeast also gives you a good daily supply of 4 vitamins, the B-vitamins, the B-vitamins, the B-vitamins, the B-vitamins.

Eat Fleischmann's fresh Yeast 3 times every day. You'll soon learn to like its fresh, malty flavor. To stimulate a prompt, full flow of the gastric juices needed for proper digestion, eat 1 cake ½ hour before each meal.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

INDICTMENT DUE ON SANE-INSANE GUNMAN TODAY

Ex-Chester Inmate Faces Robbery Charges.

An indictment charging John Harbut, notorious gunman, with robbery will be returned today before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, chief justice of the Criminal court, it was learned yesterday.

Based on the complaint of a couple whom Harbut, a former inmate of the state hospital for the insane near Chester, robbed and threatened to kill on the northwest side early last Tuesday, the indictment was reported voted in a grand jury session last Friday.

The robbery victims, Miss Wanda Dzielwitz, 21 years old, 963 Milwaukee avenue, and William Pryz, 23, of 924 Noble street, testified to details of the crime in which Harbut posed as Paul Harrison, the mad hammer slayer who was recaptured several days ago after his escape from the Chester institution.

Special Prosecutor for Case.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley determined that Harbut shall not again escape punishment for his crimes, said last night that a special prosecutor will be assigned to the case. It was reported that the indictment carries a habitual criminal count, conviction in which would enable the prosecutors to obtain a long sentence.

Harbut avoided a penitentiary sentence in 1933 when, charged with 40 robberies, he was examined by Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, head of the Criminal court's behavior clinic, and adjudged insane in Dr. Hoffman's report to a jury before Judge John Frydalski. Under the law, he could not be tried on the robbery charges and was committed to the Chester institution.

In 1936, on recommendation of doctors and officials at the hospital, Harbut was released to Chicago. A second examination by Dr. Hoffman resulted in a report that Harbut was sane.

Mental Affliction Explained.

Dr. Hoffman explained yesterday that Harbut's mental affliction was caused by an injury to the brain, a condition termed "traumatic psychosis" by psychiatrists.

Three leading psychiatrists said Saturday that cases of traumatic psychosis rarely, if ever, improve. Dr. Hoffman said yesterday that no two cases of the ailment are alike and that because of the vague nature of the disease, it is impossible to predict whether the patient's condition will grow better or worse.

"All I can say is that when I examined him in 1933, I found that the symptoms showed he was insane," Dr. Hoffman said. "When I examined him three years later, I found him to be sane. Because neither psychiatry nor the type of psychosis is exact, it was impossible at either time to say whether a change would occur."

"In short, all we can do is say whether a man is sane or insane at a certain time, but we cannot prophesy whether he will be sane or insane at a future date."

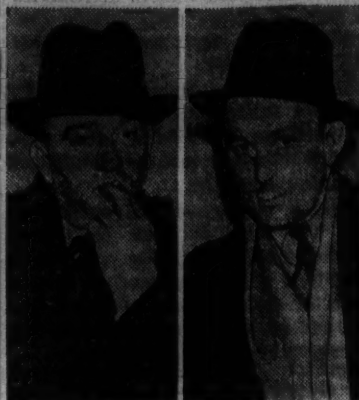

Urges Trial First.

Dr. Hoffman agreed with a statement made Saturday by John L. Sullivan, chief of detectives, that even where insanity is suspected, the prisoner should be tried first and, if found guilty, a mental examination should follow.

"In other words," the psychiatrist said, "insanity should never be used as a defense in crime. The question should be: Is John Jones guilty or is

Admit Terrorism

Chicago detectives yesterday questioned the four men below after they confessed tear gas bombings of shoe repair shops. Two of them, Burke and Hendricks, are former convicts.

This is the tear gas container from one of the bombs. The arrow points to "Made in Germany" tag through which detectives traced the buyer.

Investigation of bomb terrorism in the organization of a shoe repairmen's association was pressed yesterday after the confession of four prisoners that they were the heads of the terrorist ring. Lieut. Andrew Aitken of the detective bureau, who tracked the bombers down, said he hoped to get from them the entire story of violence against repair shops.

Aitken captured the men by tracing a shipment of tear gas bombs manufactured in Germany, and bought in St. Paul. Those held are Richard Burke and Paul Hendricks, ex-convicts, and Irving Sandler and Ray Walters.

he innocent? And then—what type of individual is he?"

Under the present law, criminals are recommended to the behavior clinic for examination. If any insanity is found, Dr. Hoffman asserted, the report is read to a jury, which may still find the man sane. If the jury finds the criminal insane at the time of committing a crime and at the time of examination, the law provides that the defendant be sent to a mental institution.

OVERCOME BY FUMES; REVIVED.

Overcome by the fumes of a cleaning fluid he was filtering yesterday morning, William Rumerio, 55 years old, was revived by a customer and police in his store at 308 Madison street, Oak Park.

QUIZ PERSONNEL OF TRADE, CRAFT COUNCIL UNIONS

Study Records of Officers in Terror Killing.

Investigation of the personnel of every organization in the Trades and Crafts council was ordered yesterday by Mal Coghlan, assistant state's attorney, as the campaign to solve the mystery of Lloyd Rourke's murder went on.

Rourke, a laundry truck driver for the Del Prado hotel at 5305 Hyde Park boulevard, was fatally clubbed with a ball bat Feb. 10 at the rear of the Fairfax hotel, 1839 Hyde Park boulevard, in the terrorism of the Del Prado strike.

Recalls Backed Charges.

Recalling the charge of Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's office that most of the salaried leaders in the council are gangsters and racketeers, Coghlan said all the members of the council's organizations found to have criminal records will be brought in for questioning. Those suspected of any connection with the murder, Coghlan said, will be sent through police showups.

Coghlan said that in addition to those with criminal records, he wishes to talk with James Dungan, business agent, and George Henneman, secretary and treasurer, of Painters' union, local 191.

Dungan and Henneman were arrested more than a year after complaints of intimidation had been received from another hotel in the Hyde Park district. Guns were found in their car, but the men won dismissal on the grounds that the police had no right to look for the guns.

Court Hearing Today.

Twelve business agents seized in the terrorism of the Del Prado strike are scheduled to appear this morning in the South Wabash avenue Police court on disorderly conduct charges.

Ben Cohn, chauffeur for William J. Donovan, has been ordered to appear today in Peoria court on a charge of assault with intent to kill, brought by Paul R. Stoddard, employed in enforcing the Landis building trades award. Cohn, arrested for questioning in the Rourke murder, was identified by Stoddard at a police showup as the chauffeur for a slugging gang that clubbed Stoddard with ball bats last June. Donovan, secretary and treasurer of the Inside Laundry Workers, has been a power in the Del Prado troubles.

Rob Furrier and Family of $2,100 Cash, Clothing

Police were searching yesterday for two bandits who stole $200 and jewelry and clothing valued at $1,900 Saturday night from Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gamson, 4836 Gladys avenue, and their daughter Ruth, a student at the University of Chicago. The robbery took place in the garage in the rear of the Gamson home. Two fur coats and a diamond ring were among the loot. Gamson owns a fur shop at 4107 Madison street.

City Labor Federation

Opposes Manager Plan

The Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday adopted a resolution opposing the city manager form of local government. The resolution drawn by the executive board held that form of city government to be undemocratic and an opening wedge for Fascism. The federation was authorized to conduct an active campaign against the plan over radio station WCFL.

POLICE SEEK WAY TO CO-OPERATION ON NORTH SHORE

Police chiefs of north shore and northwest suburban towns and cities will meet at a luncheon in the North Shore hotel, Evanston, at noon tomorrow, to discuss greater cooperation in the suppression of crime.

The principal topic will be inter-town communication. The hope of Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston, and Chief Cloyd McGuire of Wilmette, who called the meeting, is that some way can be found to send crime messages simultaneously to all police departments in the area.

The meeting will be attended by chiefs of Evanston, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Glenview, Highland Park, Highland Park, Lake Forest, Lake Bluff, Lincolnwood, Niles Center, Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Glenview, Mount Prospect, and Niles.

PEOPLE WHO PAUSED

No. 5. To Be Observed

By CALEB

A LETTER from a movie fan commented on some of the motion picture people mentioned as having signed our Guest Book. "I would have thought more moving picture stars than this have paused in your store," the writer said. "As a matter of fact, I have seen Claudette Colbert in real life only once and that was when she was wandering through your antique section with a woman, who, I learned later, was her mother. I think I wandered in that section more deliberately that day than I ever have before."

Our Colbert-fan correspondent is of course correct. Many prominent people who have signed our Guest Book (there are hundreds of them), I did not mention. And many of the thousands of visitors to our store whose names are worthy of being recorded in that book have never happened to pause to inscribe their names therein.

For instance, Ann Harding is one of our glamorous visitors. Many people have seen her in real life only here in our aisles.

Bette Davis, who suddenly seemed to spring from a player of minor parts into dramatic stardom, is another of our visitors who has caused excitement among some of our customers.

Greta Garbo, according to many movie stories, generally moves about in disguise, but she has visited us with no attempt to disguise herself except for dark glasses.

The alert salespersons here may reel off to you the names of many well-known visitors from stage or screen. After all, this is a focal point, a place where nearly every one of importance at some time or another will be seen.

Frank Capra, the director who is becoming an habitual award winner, Spencer Tracy, Toby Wing, Mary Brian, Henry Armetta, Dorothy Gish, Gypsy Rose Lee, Colonel Roscoe Turner, Wallace Beery, Tyrone Power, Grace Moore, and Charlotte Greenwood are among those persons who have excited some others of our customers who have recognized them here.

If you frequent our store and do not occasionally see famous or prominent or well-known people, it is likely because you are not particularly observing of the people with whom you shop.

PLANTER KNOCKS
2 WOMEN ASIDE
TO DIE IN PLUNGEWife and Friend Try to Halt Six Floor Leap.

Knocking aside the restraining arms of his wife and a woman friend, John Walter Scott, a plantation owner of Marion, Ark., yesterday leaped to his death from a room on the sixth floor of the Lake Shore Drive hotel to a ramp in an airway behind it. He was 51 years old and reputedly wealthy.

Quiets Her Husband.

Mrs. Scott had brought him to Chicago in the hope the trip would buoy his moody spirits, she said. He had been a frequent guest of the hotel for six years, she said. He was seated near the window yesterday morning, leaning through a newspaper. Mrs. Scott in another room, heard a window smash.

She ran out and struggled with her husband, quieting him. Then she called her friend, Elizabeth Scott, and the two talked with him for some time and thought they had averted his determination to destroy himself.

Knocks Women Aside.

Suddenly he leaped up and cried: "I've got to go!" He rushed to the window, knocking the women aside, and leaped out. The body struck a railing six floors below, and landed on a concrete ramp leading to the hotel's basement.

Mrs. Scott said her husband had been nervous and despondent since a partner, W. B. Rosen, killed himself two months ago. The death of another friend about the same time accentuated his condition, she told Detectives James Dwyer and Thomas Lovell of the East Chicago avenue station who investigated.

Widow Collapses.

The widow collapsed from shock and was placed under the care of the hotel physician. The Scotts have no children. Mrs. Scott said they have no relatives, so far as she knows, and professed utter ignorance of her husband's business affairs, although she said so far as she knew he had been experiencing no financial difficulties.

STREET CAR CONDUCTOR ROBBED.

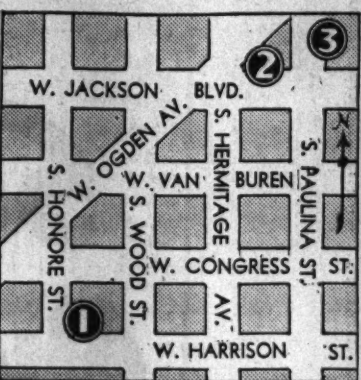

Stephen Sweeney, 40 years old, of 3210 Ardington street, a conductor on a Chicago street car, was robbed of $40 late Saturday night by a bandit who boarded the car at Keele avenue.

Mystery Scene

Arrow indicates entrance to dug-out under steps of deserted building where body of Max Sammet, dentist said to be a German political refugee, was found. Police were mystified as to the motive and circumstances of the slaying.

Dr. Sammet had been taking training at the University of Illinois school of dentistry (1). His body was found yesterday afternoon at 229 South Paulina street (3). He lived in a hotel at 1622 Jackson boulevard (2).

Tires of "Being Old" at 96 and Hangs Himself

Levi Trepeck, 96 years old, who, according to his daughter, Mrs. Lee Sachs, had occasionally complained of "being old and tired of living," hanged himself last night in his home at 7240 South Park avenue. He was still alive when found, but died later in the Mercy hospital. Trepeck was a retired salesman. He lived with Mrs. Sachs.

able medical library, and much expensive luggage.

He had been in Chicago since last summer. His wife, Mrs. Inga Sammet, has been employed in a New York dental office while her husband took training here. She visited him at Christmas time.

Informed of the murder last night at her New York hotel, she collapsed. Her husband, she said, had no enemies.

Fled Germany a Year Ago.

"I can't understand it," she sobbed. "He was a peaceful man and always avoided trouble."

Mrs. Sammet said she and her husband fled from Germany a year ago. This story coincided with that told by friends here, who said Sammet had mentioned that he had been driven out by the Hitler régime. The friends recalled that Sammet had said he had assets of $40,000 in Germany that he had been unable to bring with him. The inquest will be at 9:30 a. m. today in the undertaking rooms at 1708 Jackson boulevard.

CLUB IN OAK PARK
PROPOSES 'A DO SOMETHING DRIVE

A new organization to be known as "Let's Do Something About It, Inc.," will be launched Wednesday night at the Oak Park club, Ontario street and Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, by the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce. One of the purposes of the organization will be to persuade citizens to devote more interest to governmental affairs, according to Merle H. Potter, an Oak Park business man, who will address the meeting. Scores of members of civic and service clubs and as many business men are expected to attend.

U. S. BAKERS MEET
AROUND 75 POUND

There will be a 75 pound apple pie and a nine foot loaf of rye bread at the Hotel Sherman for 1,500 members of the Associated Bakers of America to look at during their annual convention, which starts today. Sessions will end Saturday.

A model bake shop also will be operated throughout the week with its products on display each day, after which they will be distributed to various charities.

Baking equipment and machinery and the supplies that make the finished products will be on display. Mornings will be devoted to discussions of the problems of the industry, and afternoons to demonstrations by nationally known bakers.

THE RULES

WHO CAN ENTER?
This game is open to everybody—men, women, boys, and girls everywhere—except employees of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families.

WHAT TO DO?
Every week day a picture containing the scrambled name of a movie star will be published until 36 have appeared. Unscramble the name. Use every letter in the picture. Write or print the name on the picture or a facsimile. Hold all pictures until you have the complete set of 36. DO NOT SEND THEM IN SEPA-RATELY.

WHERE TO SEND?
Mail your entry by First Class Mail, P. O. Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. With your entry send a letter, giving your name and address and telling in 50 words or less, who is your favorite movie star and why. Letters will be considered only in the event of ties in naming the stars. Entries must be in the office of the Chicago Tribune by midnight one week after Name No. 36 has appeared.

BASIS OF AWARDS.
Entries will be judged by a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree that the judges' decisions will be final. Awards will be paid to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved, complete sets of unscrambled names.
Neither handwriting nor elaborateness will count. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be paid. In fairness to all, the Tribune cannot engage in any correspondence or discussions on this contest.

N. Y. IS WARNED OF GROWING RED CONTROL IN CITY

Welfare Chairman Seeks Curb on Agitators.

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Control of New York City by communists is foreshadowed in the presence of Simon W. Gerson as assistant to Borough President Stanley M. Isaacs of Manhattan and the domination of home relief by the Workers alliance, Victor F. Ridder, chairman of the state board of social welfare, said today.

Radical infiltration of city departments will continue with increasing speed if we remain sitting quietly back doing nothing to stop it, Ridder told the Brooklyn Alumni sodality communion breakfast in Brooklyn.

Believe Alliance Is Threat.
While Ridder expressed the belief that the Workers alliance is weaker now than it was last April when he charged that it was 100 per cent communist-led, members of his audience later said they believed the alliance was a real threat to civil liberties. Such was the impression Ridder left, they agreed.

William Hodson, commissioner of public welfare, will do a much better job of breaking down influence of the alliance than did Miss Charlotte E. Carr (director of the old emergency relief bureau), Ridder said. He added that the organization is vulnerable and on the verge of defeat.

Gerson's Job an Affront.
Gerson's success was something of an affront to the average citizen, the speaker said. It presaged a strange sight on May day, Ridder continued, when employees of the borough president's office march in line with avowed communists under the red banner.

"I don't blame Gerson, why should he resign?" asked Ridder. "It's clearly the fault of those who appointed him to office in the first place. I'd be very glad to see him ousted, though. The people of this city should learn to profit by the example of conditions in Rome, Leningrad, and Berlin today. Communist control can come, sure as daylight."

New York Printers Oppose Howard for Union Head

New York, Feb. 20.—(P)—By a vote of almost two to one, Claude M. Baker of San Francisco, A. F. of L. proponent, won the endorsement of the local unit of the International Typographical union today for the office of international president. Baker received 569 votes to 311 for Charles P. Howard, a C. I. O. official and incumbent. The New York returns further strengthened Baker's position in the race which may develop into an A. F. of L.-C. I. O. struggle for control of the union.

Fiery Liquid Gold

Halt Cremation of Body of Trotzky's Son; Hunt Poison

(Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.)
PARIS, Feb. 20.—Permission to cremate the body of Leon Sedoff, son of Leon Trotsky, was refused today by authorities when his funeral procession, accompanied by thousands of Trotsky followers of all nations, arrived at Pere Lachaise cemetery. The reason for the refusal was that the final results of the autopsy performed a few days ago were not yet known. Poisoning was suspected by Sedoff's friends. Interment took place in a temporary crypt.

PHILIPPINE GOLD BOOMS; WRITER DESCRIBES MINE

Process of Extracting Metal Explained.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

MANILA, P. I.—(By air mail.)—Gold mining has flourished in the Philippines since the price of the metal was boosted from $20.67 to $35 an ounce in 1933. A trip through the Benguet mine at Baguio, arranged by Andre Soriano and personally conducted by Judge John W. Hausmann, head of the company, proved very interesting. The first view of the mine was obtained from a 1,000 foot bluff directly above it. The main buildings and workmen's houses were down in a gorge. It is the old question of whether to take the mill to the ore or the ore to the mill. Here it is the former.

A winding one way road goes down the side of the mountain. Arriving at the mill, the judge calls the mine foreman, who takes charge. A miner's outfit is provided.

Goes 700 Feet Underground.
A small elevator quickly drops us to the 700 foot level, the lowest in the mine. The veins of gold run east and west for several miles and extend downward 650 feet. Small tunnels follow the veins. The tunnels are about 5 feet high and 4 feet wide. Little trains of dump cars are pulled by trolley locomotives on 18 inch gauge track. There are a total of forty miles of tunnel. Every 30 or 40 feet, depending upon conditions, a stope is cut at right angles

BOYS FIND TWO TONS OF MUNITIONS STORED IN CAVE NEAR PARIS

PARIS, Feb. 20.—(P)—Police announced two boys exploring a stone quarry at Annet-sur-Marne, near Meaux, Saturday found two tons of arms and munitions including three anti-tank guns and 18 machine guns hidden in a cave.

Detectives from Paris said the cache was one of the largest found since opening of the official investigation of the "CSAR," secret revolutionary organization, which has led to numerous arrests.

Soldiers of an artillery regiment were called to remove the store of rifles, bombs, boxes, and powerful explosives and miscellaneous equipment, including steel helmets.

to the tunnel. Stope is the term used for a cross section of excavation.

As soon as a stope has been excavated through the gold vein and up to the next level it is filled up with dirt from the surface and another stope cut. By this process all of the vein eventually will be worked out and no large cavity left in the earth.

Loading Handled by Gravity.

All loading is handled by gravity—ore below the surface of one level is chuted down to the next. Ore is drilled by compressed air and blasted with dynamite. The rock looks like limestone and one's eyes have to be good to distinguish the little specks of gold in it.

The ore upon arriving at the mill (the cars are taken up a shaft to mill level tracks) is dumped into a coarse crusher which reduces it to ½ inch mesh. From there it goes by belt conveyor to a ball crusher which pulverizes it to 200 mesh (200 little squares to 1 square inch). The ball mill is simply a large number of small steel balls being mechanically rotated.

The next process is washing the ore through pipes to agitators, a chemical solution being added to it in transit. This chemical solution completely dissolves the gold. From the agitators it goes to thickeners (two large circular tanks with revolving arms in the center). Then to the filters, which extract the liquid gold. It looks like water. Another acid, zinc oxide, is applied that solidifies the gold.

Mine Works 24 Hours a Day.

The liquid with its small solids now is ready for the clarifying press, then the precipitation press. The bouillon is then melted and poured into small rectangular molds. The bricks, about the size of ordinary paving bricks, weigh about 40 pounds each.

The mine works three eight hour shifts and employs 1,500 men. No one under the age of 21 is allowed to work. Labor is cheap—one peso (50 cents per day) is the scale—but every one seems to be happy. There is a distinct atmosphere of efficiency about the place. The office walls are covered with efficiency charts covering all phases of the work.

Judge Hausmann is quite pleased with his mine, and takes great pride in his success.

ROOSEVELT SET TO IMPOSE WILL ON PRICE LEVEL

price of the manufacturer's raw material or both, while decreasing no reduction of wages.

Possesses Vast Power

Never before, it was pointed out, has a business man's chance of making a profit been so dependent on the will and whim of one man. Never before has one man possessed such power to make or break private enterprise. That is why a mere chance remark by Mr. Roosevelt sends the stock market and the commodity markets up or down. That is why the whole business community hangs on every word he utters and maintains scouts in Washington to report the slightest change in his state of mind.

That is why the whole world hangs on the press conference interviews with the chief executive and why unguarded or ill considered utterances on his part have within the last month upset business more than usual. There is nothing like it short of the authoritarian governments of Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin.

To many the President's disposition to invoke powers to put some prices up and other prices down has an ominous ring. For of such powers is dictatorship formed. And if there is any certainty in this troubled world it is that we, too, will come to an authoritarian form of government if our present democratic institutions fail to solve our economic problems.

Course Brings Criticism

Critics of Mr. Roosevelt have been quick to retort to him that in ascribing the current depression to the behavior of prices he is confusing symptoms with ailments. Just as a man who feels bad blames his headache instead of the physical conditions that have produced the headache.

Thus it is contended that the behavior of prices is merely the symptom of a deeply seated economic ailment produced by the cessation of vast inflationary government expenditures, by the impact on business of the President's pet soak the rich tax, the undistributed profits levy, by the withdrawal from purchasing power of a billion dollars in pay roll taxes for social security, by the increased cost of production resulting from monetary tinkering and the extraordinary rise in wages, and by governmental hostility to private enterprise which has frightened capital out of the investment market. What is needed, say the critics, is not a reversal of price policy but a reversal of policies that have caused the price trends.

LITTLE CASH, BIG SATISFACTION IN 83 YEARS' WORK

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 20.—(Special.)—John M. Horan, who held a steady job probably longer than any other man in recorded history, accumulated no estate in his 83 years of continuous employment. Neither did he leave any debts when he died two weeks ago, a few days after he had observed his 100th birthday.

A few dollars in cash, a little personal property, probably altogether less than a thousand dollars, his son William said, are the tangible assets of a steady job that lasted at least double the average working life time. Horan worked for the Milwaukee railroad from the time when a boy, 17 years old, he asked for a job until he died. When he died he was a boiler washer inspector.

Delay Pilot's Wedding

JEAN PEARSALL.

ROBERT N. BUCK.

Westfield, N. J., Feb. 20.—(Special.)

—Fretting at the weather which has kept him from being a bridegroom for the last two days, Robert N. Buck, 24 years old, a Transcontinental Western Air Lines pilot, holder of 14 air records, was moving eastward to Westfield from Chicago today at what he considered a snail's pace although he was aboard one of the nation's fastest railroad trains.

If things go right, Buck will be married tomorrow night to Jean Pearsall, a Fifth avenue dress model, who had to send 120 guests home Saturday night when she learned that her bridegroom-to-be was grounded in snow-covered Kansas City. Earlier, flying from San Francisco, he had been held at Albuquerque, N. M., for three days by the weather.

The wedding guests have been invited to come back tomorrow night to the wedding at the First Methodist Episcopal church in Westfield. The newlyweds hope to proceed by plane at once to San Francisco, where they will make their home.

1,500 Knights of Columbus Hear Federal Mediator

The Rev. John W. McGuire of St. Victor's college, Bourbonnais, Ill., federal labor mediator, spoke last night before 1,500 members of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House. Other speakers were the Very Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, president of De Paul university, and Judge James A. Corcoran of Evanston. The banquet followed the initiation of 300 third degree members into the fourth degree.

"ARE CAMELS REALLY DIFFERENT FROM OTHER CIGARETTES?"...a question of interest to every smoker

"I've never been very fussy about cigarettes myself. Do you think that Camels are really as different as some people say, Bill?"

"You bet they are different, John! A fellow in any work as hard as selling has to figure a lot of angles on his smoking, such as how it agrees with him. And just notice how many salesmen smoke Camels. I changed to Camels—smoked 'em steadily—and I found a distinct difference in the way I enjoyed all-day smoking and in the way I felt. Camels agree with me!"

A FRIEND DROPS IN to see Bill's model racing sloop. Daly passes the Camels and answers a natural question about smoking. "That all-cigarettes-are-alike talk doesn't square with my experience. Believe me, steady smoking is the test that shows Camels in a class by themselves. They don't make my nerves 'edgy.'"

...When H. W. DALY, rayon salesman, says "Yes, Camels are really different," millions of other steady smokers back him up. And that explains why Camels are preferred by the largest body of smokers ever known.

A QUICK KISS FROM MARITA (Mrs. Daly) and Bill is off to catch the 7:55. Soon he'll be under the nervous pressure of a long day—tackling customers and prospects. The Dalys agree about most things. Among them, Camels. Mrs. Daly smoked them first, soon noticed a difference. "Now we find that Camels agree better with both of us," she says.

REBELS SHATTER LOYALIST LINES; TERUEL CIRCLED

Franco Battling to Retake Provincial Capital.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish frontier) Feb. 20.—(AP)—The fate of Teruel tonight hung on a fierce battle raging on the city's outskirts where government defenders fought desperately against advancing insurgent troops attempting to recapture the city lost more than two months ago.

Insurgent military dispatches said Teruel, 120 miles east of Madrid, was now "undefendable" by a government garrison locked in a tight-lined siege.

Government sources, however, said their generals had drawn the insurgents into a trap permitting them to encircle the city along a thin line and then smash at Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops both from within and without the shattered city.

Insurgents Make Big Gains. Barcelona dispatches admitted wide insurgent gains north of Teruel in the last few days, but said the city still was in complete government control. Both sides withheld artillery fire, fearing shells would land among their own forces so close were the battle lines. Machine gun and rifle fire was continuous.

Recapture of the shell and bomb ripped city would completely turn the tables on the government which took Teruel from the insurgents in similar fashion on Dec. 21.

Complete success in this counter-offensive would give Franco a jumping off place for a drive some sixty miles eastward to the Mediterranean, which would split Catalonia off from the rest of government Spain.

German Pilot Shot Down.

Aided by thundering trench mortars and a fleet of bombing and strafing planes the insurgents stormed the mountainside positions and routed their foe from the northeastern sector despite heavy machine gun fire.

The government reported that an insurgent pilot of German nationality crashed inside the defense lines critically wounded. The insurgents said two government pursuit planes and a bomber were brought down by anti-aircraft guns.

The encirclement of Teruel cut the road southeast to Sagunto which lies on the coast about fifteen miles north of Valencia.

FLOOD RECEDES IN ARKANSAS; 5,000 HOMELESS

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Fears of flood-besieged Arkansas residents abated today when there was no rain for the second successive day and rivers crested below predicted levels, but winter storms brought new distress to other states.

Though the swollen Arkansas and White rivers appeared to be less menacing, relief agencies in Arkansas continued to stand by and the WPA prepared to double its force of 2,000 men engaged in bolstering soggy levees.

Through a crevasse in the White river levee south of Newport, Ark., water poured over 25,000 farm acres and drove 200 families to higher ground yesterday. The overflowing Cache at Bransfield in eastern Arkansas forced 125 persons to shelter in box cars. The Red Cross estimated 5,000 families would be affected today by the high waters.

JAPANESE PLANS FOR BIG CRUISERS WORRY ENGLAND

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Japan has started construction of at least two, and perhaps four, pocket sized battleships of between 15,000 and 16,000 tons, carrying 12-inch guns and capable of outfighting anything except capital ships, it was reported here today.

The British admiralty has long been worried over rumors of such craft, but according to Lieutenant Commander Kenneth Edwards, writing in the Sunday Times, there is now definite knowledge that Japan has two such ships under construction.

The British are worried over the report because it would mean that their cruisers would be of little use in guarding commerce.

Eight or ten such cruisers might entirely disrupt British shipping in war time. No other power has anything of their type and none have been planned, since they are banned by the London naval treaty of 1936. Like battleships, cruisers make up part of the battle fleet. They scout ahead and on its flanks. But they have equally important functions on detached duty, protecting their own country's shipping and raiding the enemy's. Great Britain is dependent on shipping for food and supplies. Six weeks of complete blockade would probably put the British in desperate straits. Having bases scattered all over the world, the British do not need as the United States does cruisers with great cruising radius. They can always stay within reach of bases and perform as well as larger cruisers. For those reasons Britain has always advocated cruiser limits of 3,000 tons, with 6-inch guns. They are willing to have the tonnage limit higher if the gun caliber is kept down.

PREDICTS GIANT AIRCRAFT WILL OUTMODE LINERS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Grover Loening, a pioneer in American aviation, predicted today that giant aircraft would supersede superliners.

Resigning as aeronautical adviser to the maritime commission, Loening said the commission's aviation study had disclosed without contradiction the potentialities of aircraft in transoceanic travel. He will return to private practice as an aviation consultant.

Loening said Pan-American Airways had become virtually a monopoly because of vision and foresight and lack of initiative on the part of others.

An Important Announcement to Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The Southeast with its huge six billion dollar buying power can be reached effectively only with daily newspapers. No other form of media can carry your message into the homes of so many families in the Southeast with money to spend with anything approaching the economy offered by Southeastern dailies.

RADIO CAN'T DO THE JOB IN THE SOUTHEAST

The most enthusiastic estimates of radio ownership and coverage in the Southeast will show that it lags far behind the average for the country as a whole. This is not a question of buying power, but is largely due to the year 'round climate, which invites people out of doors to many other diversions.

NATIONAL MAGAZINES CAN'T DO THE JOB IN THE SOUTHEAST

It is a well known fact that coverage by national magazines in the Southeast is too sparse and scattered to influence the great total of buying power. The buying power of this tremendously rich and growing market is completely covered by daily newspapers.

You can reach:

1,314,626 Native-White Families
(The Real Buying Power of the Southeast)

by these 19 Daily Newspapers at a Combined Rate of $3.09 PER LINE

Maximum Coverage Minimum Cost

Over 83% of the spendable income of the Southeast and over 75% of the total retail sales are confined in the 19 markets spotted on the map together with their trading areas (A. B. C. radius). In these markets where the wealth and buying power of the Southeast is concentrated, over 71% of the native-white families are reached by the Southeastern dailies listed here. This 71% is made up of families with money to spend. This 71% is the real buying power of the Southeast. Today, advertisers of necessity must plan the most judicious use of media. If you are selling in the Southeast, and you should be, you must use daily newspapers for effective coverage.

This carefully planned list of Southeastern dailies gives you the most complete, the most effective coverage of the Southeast at the most economical cost.

For full information in connection with any of the individual markets or for the territory as a whole, write any one of the daily newspapers listed here, or Southern Newspapers, 1109 Mortgage Guaranty Building, Atlanta, Ga.

400 LIVES A DAY TOLL OF JAPAN'S DRIVE IN CHINA

War Costs 1,260,000
Casualties So Far.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The seven months of war in China have cost Japan 260,000 casualties to China's 1,000,000—in the estimate of informed foreign sources—and 400 lives a day is the price of the present Japanese drive to conquer the Lunghai railway corridor.

Chinese losses along the Tientsin-Pukow (Nanking) and Peking-Hankow railways, main routes of attack on the Lunghai railway front, were said to be running much higher. Of Japan's estimated total casualties 60,000 were dead and the other 200,000 wounded.

Japs Capture Another Town.
The southbound Japanese army which had been crushing the Chinese on the Peking-Hankow railway just north of the Yellow river and at the western end of the Lunghai corridor shovelled 50 miles westward from fallen Sinsiang on the heels of their routed foe and were reported today to have captured Poai.

They reached Poai by following a spur of the Peking-Hankow line which runs into an important coal mining area north of the Yellow river.

Japanese military authorities admitted that four of their pursuit planes were brought down yesterday in an air battle over Hankow, temporary Chinese capital in the deep interior. They had reported, however, that 30 of the 45 Chinese planes defending the city were shot down. Thirty Japanese planes took part in the raid. The wounded pilot of a fifth Japanese plane was forced to land near Wuhu, where he died.

Chiang Addresses Nation.
HANKOW, China, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, supreme commander of China's defense forces, declared today that Japan had occupied but one-seventh of the total territory or seven out of the twenty-six Chinese provinces.

"Japan's military adventure in China fundamentally has failed," he said in nation-wide radio address marking the fourth anniversary of the founding of the Chinese "new life" movement.

Two Brothers Killed When Private Airplane Crashes
Lexington, Ky., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Raymond Comley, 38 years old, manager of an auto rental company here, and his brother Paul, 31, were killed today when a small airplane owned and piloted by the former crashed near here from a height of 300 feet.

Marriage Hits Snag

(TRIBUNE Photo.)
Loretta Dennis and Maurice Golden.

New York, Feb. 20.—[Special.]—That marriage scene in the Follies one Saturday night three years ago, starring red haired Loretta Dennis and Producer Maurice Golden, today was scheduled for a legal blackout. Loretta, a judge's daughter who graduated from the chorus to stage roles, has filed a separation suit.

The titian beauty became the second Mrs. Golden in a ceremony on the stage set from the nuptial scene in the 1934 Follies, then playing in Chicago. Fannie Brice and Willie Howard were the attendants. Six Follies girls were bridesmaids. Loretta charges in her complaint that Golden began to stay out until 4 a. m. without her, and wouldn't permit her to bring guests into their home. She will appear before Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy on Wednesday to ask for $150 weekly alimony and $1,000 counsel fees.

PARTY REBELLION BALKS ACTION ON JAP WAR MEASURE

Parliament Scene of Boos and Scuffling.

TOKIO, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Flinging opposition from Japan's major political parties to the government headed by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe has blocked parliamentary discussion of the general mobilization bill and temporarily sidetracked introduction of important electric power control legislation.

Except for the newspaper Asahi the press was unanimous in saying a very tense political situation prevailed after an outburst of anti-government booing, shouting, and fist fighting in the lower house of parliament.

Fight Fascist Tendencies.
Some observers said the real issue between the government and parliament was the Konoe régime's attempt to obtain Fascist-like control of Japan. The general mobilization bill would expand the government's already broad control of industry and finance for prosecution of the war in China. The actual disorder was precipitated last night by the government's manner of explaining a recent invasion of headquarters of the Minseito (majority) and Selyukai, Japan's most prominent political parties.

Take Over Headquarters.
Four hundred men described as "professional ruffians" made up an "anti-comintern corps" which raided the parties' offices and were expected to occupy them for thirty days, it was said, while parliament discussed the power control and general mobilization bills. Some members of parliament expressed belief the name—"anti-comintern corps"—was merely a blind for a scheme to help the government steamroller the bills into law.

11 CHILDREN IN CUSACK FAMILY, AND ALL ARE BOYS

As large families go, Thomas and Mrs. Teale Cusack, 5735 North Avenue, think that they've got an unusual one. They have eleven children, young ones and grown up, and there's not a daughter among 'em. They're all sons.

They range from 5 to 27 years in age, and all are pretty sturdy and studious. The Cusacks believe in a well rounded education for the boys, with the result that the older ones have finished high school and one is now at Northwestern university. The younger ones are in grade or elementary schools and Quigley Preparatory Institute.

Down the line the eleven Cusack sons are: Michael, 27 years old; Patrick, 25; Thomas Jr., 23; William, 22; James, 20; Martin, 18; John, 17; Joseph, 14; Francis, 9; Raymond, 8, and Donald, 5.

10,000 CELEBRATE LITHUANIA'S 20TH YEAR OF LIBERTY

Nearly 10,000 Chicago Lithuanians gathered in Marquette park yesterday afternoon to witness the placing of wreaths at the monument to Capt. Stephen Darlus and Lieut. Stanley Girenas, Chicago-Lithuanian flyers who died in a trans-Atlantic flight five years ago. This was a part of the observance of the twentieth anniversary of the independence of Lithuania.

After the park ceremony, a patriotic program was held in the Ashland Boulevard auditorium. Principal speakers were Dr. Peter Dauzvardis, Lithuanian consul, and Leonard Shlunskis of the Lithuanian Daily Draugas. The Lithuanian society held a dinner and dance last night at the Morrison hotel. A trans-Atlantic phone conversation between officers of the Lithuanian parliament and Chicago Lithuanian leaders was amplified at the dance.

"IN CHICAGO, NORGE found color advertising in the Tribune especially productive..."

says HOWARD E. BLOOD, President

Coloroto Pages in the Graphic Section of the Sunday Tribune play important part in Norge sales increase of 33% over 1936!

● A 33% sales increase in 1937 over 1936! That's the record hung up by the aggressive sales organization of the Sampson Electric Company, Norge distributor in Chicago.

And, according to Howard E. Blood, President of the Norge Division of the Borg-Warner Corporation, coloroto pages in the Graphic Section of the Sunday Tribune played a large part in helping the Sampson organization achieve this record.

As brought out by Mr. Blood in his letter, Norge stresses zone operations in its sales and advertising plans. Through well-planned merchandising, backed by newspaper advertising in selected sales territories, Norge has risen from 17th place in 1929 to prominence among the leaders in the home-appliance industry.

In Chicago the major part of Sampson's advertising effort on Norge products has appeared in the Chicago Tribune since 1928. Each year since 1932 has seen an increase in the use of Tribune space.

Every study of consumer preference made in the Chicago area consistently ranks Norge among the first three in public acceptance. An important plus value enjoyed by Norge's newspaper advertising has been the enthusiastic response by dealers and salesmen.

For years a user of Tribune newsprint color pages, Sampson was quick to recognize the sales power of coloroto pages in the Graphic Section of the Sunday Tribune—first made available to advertisers in 1937.

Last year the expenditure of the Sampson Electric Company for advertising in the Daily and Sunday Tribune totaled $74,074.00. The campaign included a sustained, high volume program of black and white units and 15 full pages in color—9 in newsprint color and 6 in Graphic Section coloroto.

Use of the Tribune insures for Norge advertising thorough coverage of appliance prospects in the Chicago metropolitan area and in hundreds of cities and towns throughout the Central West as well.

It will more than repay you to get all the facts regarding the results which Norge and other organizations are securing through their use of Tribune advertising. Their success demonstrates that no matter what you sell—simple necessities or luxury products—you can take maximum advantage of the sales opportunities the great Chicago market offers by building your advertising plan around the Tribune.

Rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in the advertising business.

Year after Year, NORGE has increased its expenditures for Tribune space!

Mr. Arthur E. Olsen
CHICAGO TRIBUNE
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. Olsen:

We are happy to be able to advise you that our color Roto pages in the Graphic Section of the Sunday TRIBUNE have played an important part in the continued success of the Norge operation in the territory served by the CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

As you know, the Norge organization has continually stressed some operations in their merchandising plans. We have found that, by this method, we can adapt the best kind of advertising in each territory to the particular distributor's needs.

In the Chicago territory, we found color advertising in the TRIBUNE especially productive in connection with our sales plans. Until the latter part of 1937, we made strong use of newsprint color pages in your newspaper. Your development last year of the Graphic Section, with its widespread appeal to all members of the family and its excellent attractive form of newspaper color advertising which we found advantageous to add to our program of promotion.

How successful our color Roto pages in the Graphic Section have been, in conjunction with our other TRIBUNE advertising, is evidenced by the record of the Sampson Electric Company. They report that 1937 sales of Norge Rollator Refrigerators, Concentrator Gas and Electric Ranges, Autobuilt Washers, Duotrol Ironers, and package heating and commercial equipment increased 33% over 1936.

Cordially yours,

Howard E. Blood

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
New York, Feb. 20.—Special.—The average sailor in the American merchant marine of today is a disillusioned man for whom the blue waters of the sea are the walls of a prison rather than the beckoning vistas of romance.

All along this New York water front, where 20,000 seamen put in to port each day, one may find evidence of the discontent and restlessness of the modern sailor.

This feeling of resentment at his lot, which is being assiduously cultivated by agitators, is at the bottom of the labor troubles which have paralyzed American shipping during recent years.

Comprise Strange Breed.
During a canvass of the situation stories of scores of sailors were obtained first hand. The seamen were interviewed lying in their bunks or going about their tasks on shipboard, idling along the docks, resting in welfare havens, milling about hiring halls, and passing their time on shore in various haunts.

They comprise a strange breed of malcontents, these seamen, a group alien to other divisions in the social order of this country. Contrary to popular conception, they are not drawn from some good stock in the eastern coastal towns and farms, but are recruited, for the most part, from seaboard cities.

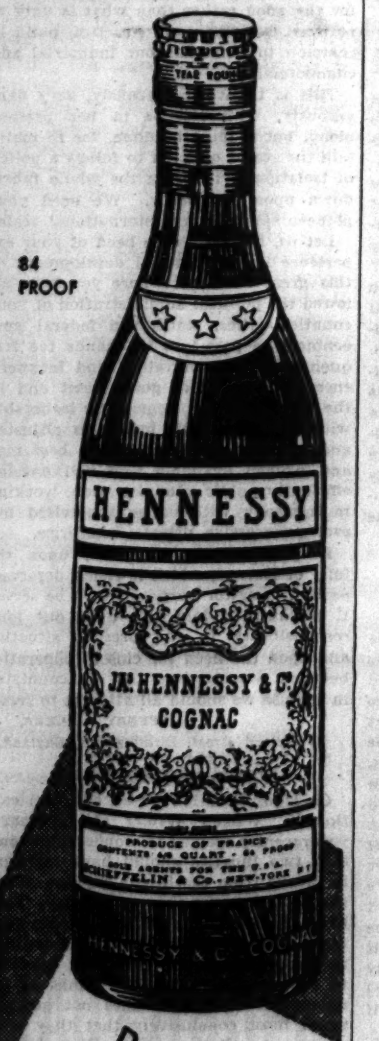

For many of them the sea is an escape from troubles at home, and is the same sort of haven from public scrutiny as is the French Foreign Legion.

Four Out of Five Unmarried.
Petty crimes or domestic strife often account for the new recruit rather than the lure of adventure. Almost uniformly they quit school at an early age and some have served terms in reformatories. Four out of five are unmarried. Few are out of debt. Their "A. B." [able seamen's] certificate is their meal ticket.

The maritime system has had much to do with the morale of the men. While conditions have improved since the days when men were "shanghaied" to fill out a crew and seamanhood was knocked into them with a belaying pin, some of their complaints have foundation.

This helps pave the way for leaders who seek to bring the seamen into the camp of radicals or to exploit them in other ways. The communists in New York are making their greatest drive for members among the sailors.

Red Program Instituted.

In this connection it is recalled that last week in Washington, Joe Curran, head of the National Maritime union, an affiliate of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, denied that he was a communist, but expressed his admiration for the party.

The Stalinist program is being propagated into the thinking of the seamen regardless of whether they actually affiliate with the communist party. Evidence of this was disclosed during the course of a talk with one of the C. I. O. maritime leaders who admitted the Red infiltration.

"The communists helped us with our strikes," said this leader, "and of course we have the same idea. That is to get organized so we can take over the ships when the Fascists get in power."

Points to Spanish War.

He was unable to identify the Fascists, but said the situation would be something like that in Spain. In the Seamen's hall of the Maritime union there hangs a large sign commemorating members who died fighting Fascism in Spain. Nearby on a bulletin board is a sign asking union members to join in a united front parade and demonstration in Wall street.

The seamen's grievances are numerous and they differ according to ships, operators, and the sailors' individual taste. The grumbling mainly is about quarters aboard ship, food, and rates of pay.

A majority of the sailors prefer to ship on a tanker, despite the dangers of a cargo of gasoline and oil, because they say the tanker has more commodious quarters and galleys than have freighters or passenger ships.

Quarters Source of Complaint.

In this connection it was learned that the principal source of irritation on the Manhattan, ocean liner and flagship of the United States Lines, is the nature of the quarters.

A visit paid to the "fo'c'sle" [sailors' quarters] of the Manhattan precipitated a wave of complaints. The men complained that the "fo'c'sle" lay so close to the water line that the portholes must be kept tightly closed and the hot air heating system dries out the air to such an extent that the occupants become susceptible to chronic sore throats and colds.

They insisted locker space was inadequate and that their shoregoing clothes got wrinkled when hung from pipes and other fixtures. Twenty-four seamen were quartered in the "fo'c'sle," while there were fifty men in the stewards' "gloryhole."

On the other hand, the galley was spic and span and the lavatory appeared ample enough. In one corner was a hot and cold running shower.

One of the complaints heard on shore is that in some ships the sailors are forced to take baths out of water buckets, but none of the seamen could name a specific example.

Criticism also was voiced of the bunks, which some seamen said are unstable and likely to pitch their occupants out on their heads when the ship takes a heavy roll.

The men grumble about their food in the most picturesque language and demand one mess for both officers and men.

"Our bellies are as good as the officers'," growled one old tar. "Do you call eating garbage discipline?" The disgruntled seamen assert that many crimes are committed in the name of discipline by the ship officers and say when a man is sick they call it faking.

HE SHOT THE WORLD'S MOST DANGEROUS RAPIDS...alone!

IN A HOMEMADE BOAT, young Buzz Holmstrom shoved off last fall to do what no man ever did before: run the Colorado River alone, from Wyoming to Boulder Dam—and live! Ahead of him were 1100 miles of canyon-imprisoned river, 365 great rapids, twice that number of small ones. A smash-up meant death—either quickly, by drowning, or slowly, by starvation... Fifty-two days later, Holmstrom brought his craft alongside the concrete wall of Boulder Dam. Here, in your Post, is the thrill-packed story of that incredible trip.

THE 2 1/2 BILLION DOLLAR SWINDLE.

The War Finance corporation was created in 1918 for the purpose of giving financial support to war industries which found it impossible to finance themselves from available sources. Subsequently the corporation was authorized to assist in reconstruction following the 1920 panic by making loans for agricultural purposes to banking and financing institutions, including live stock loan companies, and to cooperative marketing associations. Five hundred million dollars was provided for its operations, and it was hoped that only a small part of that would be lost. The corporation was placed in liquidation in 1925. By June 30 all but 10 thousand of the 500 million dollars of capital had been returned to the treasury. In addition, nearly 65 million dollars was paid into the treasury on account of earnings. This venture actually proved to be a money-maker for the treasury.

The War Finance corporation was the pattern for the Reconstruction Finance corporation. It was believed that it would operate, if not at a profit, then without substantial loss. The government has until recently sought to give the impression that such has been the outcome. The treasury supplied funds to the RFC by purchasing $500,000 of stock and about 4 billion dollars of notes. The entire amount has been carried on the treasury books at face value, with the implication that the total assets represented sound values which would ultimately be covered into the treasury to reduce the public debt.

The RFC has itself contributed to the belief that its affairs were sound. Early in 1936 the corporation issued a report over the signature of Jesse Jones, chairman, in which the claim was made that the corporation had earned $115,844,219. The concluding paragraph in the statement was as follows:

"If the policies of the corporation are continued substantially as they have been, it appears that this $115,844,219, together with the small margin between interest we pay the treasury and our lending rates, will be sufficient to cover losses on all loans, including investments in banks and insurance companies, assuming Commodity Credit corporation will have no ultimate loss."

The President throughout the 1936 campaign, and in particular in his speech in Pittsburgh, represented that the national debt was not as large as claimed because there were recoverable assets of 6 billions which would eventually be available to retire that much of the debt. To arrive at a 6 billion dollar figure the President would have to include the RFC stock and notes at par.

On Feb. 8, Mr. Jones, as chairman of the RFC, appeared before a committee in the lower house to ask that the Reconstruction Finance corporation be authorized to write off 2 billion 600 million dollars of its assets which were worthless. That means that the stock of the RFC has no value and its bonds are worth about 50 cents on the dollar. It means that there has been a 2 1/2 billion overstatement of assets in the balance sheet of the government. It means that the administration which passed the "honesty in securities" law has sold billions of dollars' worth of securities on a dishonest financial statement. The Reconstruction Finance corporation, which had been set up with the promise of being like the successful War Finance corporation, has thus turned out to be a 2 1/2 billion dollar swindle. There have been some sizable swindles in the past, but none to compare with this one.

NEW HORIZONS.

Mr. Kennedy is one dynamic character produced by the present administration who appears to have received the commendation of all parties. As the head of the SEC he showed a sagacity and tolerance that removed many of the rough edges from that piece of experimental legislation. As the chairman of the maritime commission he produced the most exhaustive study of conditions in the American merchant marine that has ever been written. He has now been appointed ambassador to the court of St. James's. Before relinquishing his connection with the merchant marine he made several caustic comments regarding America's future on the high seas that threw a beam of intelligence into the hazy atmosphere of romance, mystery, and mismanagement that has surrounded America's off-shore experiments. His investigation led him to the conclusion that either the navy must build and maintain its own auxiliary fleet of transports and tankers or the taxpayers of the United States must support a government merchant marine unless the laws can be so altered as to permit the railways to acquire shipping and thus extend their lines across the oceans.

Few people realize what railway ownership and operation of steamship lines would mean to our foreign commerce. First and foremost, the passenger can visualize with delight the prospect of American dining car and Pullman service being extended overseas. As to foreign trade, the railway agent at any station in the United States could quote a rate to a foreign destination that would be a "through" rate and not merely the sum of the charges to and from the seaboard. Its volume would reflect the necessities of the shipper. He could also sign a bill of lading that would insure the delivery of goods at a foreign port without the addition of the so-called incidental charges at ports of transshipment.

To be sure, there are forwarding agents now available who will relieve the exporter of these details, but on examination of their charges it will be found that "cartage at New York," "messenger service," "export entry," and other incidentals sometimes run into more money than the actual cost of transportation. With American railway service freight would be transferred at seaboard with the same facility that box cars now pass over the boundary between the United States and Canada. Indeed, car ferry operations that now reach Cuba would be a future possibility to other foreign countries.

FRIENDLY JUDGES AND FAVORABLE FORUMS.

The senate committee on judiciary in determining whether it ought to advise and consent to the appointment of Assistant Attorney General Jackson to be solicitor general elicited some significant opinions, but none more deserving the serious attention of the public than Mr. Jackson's idea of picking a "friendly judge." Said Mr. Jackson: "I would always pick a friendly judge if I could find one." To which Senator Norris added: "What's wrong with picking a friendly forum? Doesn't the other side do it?"

What does this conception of public justice come to? Simply this—that when a public prosecutor decides for any reason that may appeal to him to bring a citizen into court, he may select a court which is inclined to be "friendly" or "favorable" to the prosecution. Senator Norris thinks this course is justified because, as he asserts, the other side does it. An honest man would ask him if he holds that two wrongs make a right.

It is wrong for a government agent to try to find a "friendly judge" or a "favorable forum," in other words a judge or forum predisposed toward him or his argument? Certainly it is human to do so, but it is so certainly contrary to the law and the ethics of this country that if it had not been brazenly approved by these two high officials it would be insulting to pose the question. We do not ignore the fact that some men have tried and will always try to find a judge friendly to them. Some of them have gone to the extent of insuring a "favorable forum" by corrupting a magistrate or a jurymen. If discovered they have gone to jail for it, since these crude methods are prohibited by explicit law. But this prohibition is based on the principle that every citizen shall be assured of a trial of his right by an equal tribunal, neither a friendly nor an unfriendly, neither a favorable nor an unfavorable forum.

And this is especially important in cases where in the vast power of government is turned upon the citizen. Mr. Jackson is a servant of the people. It is his duty as an agent of the government in the law department to investigate alleged breaches of the law and to bring proceedings against citizens he believes have broken the law. But there his duty ends. It is not his duty to insure conviction by seeking a judge who is friendly to him or a forum which is favorable to his views. On the contrary, it is his duty to seek a forum which will hold the scales evenly between the government and the citizen. When Mr. Jackson talks about a friendly judge, and Senator Norris about a favorable forum, they cannot escape the necessary implication that a friendly judge must be a judge unfriendly to the defendant, that a forum favorable to the prosecution is a forum unfavorable to the defendant. The right of both prosecution and defense is to equal justice, to a forum not predisposed to either until all facts are in and all arguments fairly considered.

This is elementary in our conception of justice. It is perhaps not surprising that two men who favored the court packing proposal openly defend the choosing of friendly judges and favorable forums for the adjudication of government controversies with citizens. But it reveals an ethical confusion and a misconception of public duty which unites Mr. Jackson for the office to which he has been selected.

A PAN-AMERICAN DEFENSE ALLIANCE.

An approach to a defensive military alliance with the United States has been made, according to Washington reports, by South American governments which are not named. Such proposals are worthy of cordial consideration. A defensive agreement would be only a restatement in other terms of the Monroe Doctrine. It would admit the cooperative factor and that would eliminate what the South Americans sometimes regard as an assumption of power and control by the United States.

The negotiation of such treaties would be a reaffirmation of hands off to European Fascism, which finds the South American field inviting and is encouraging the tendencies toward autocracy where it might be flattered to imitate the totalitarian state. The one safe maxim these days is to put nothing beyond the possibilities of the two psychopathic cases of egotism who are governing Germany and Italy.

Editorial of the Day

AGAIN, THE STREETER CASE.
(Illinois State Journal.)

There is on trial at Davenport, Ia., a suit to determine whether occupants of a portion of its waterfront have a legal right to hold the property. A jury has been selected to hear the case, but it is probable that its verdict, whatever the finding, will be appealed to the higher courts.

The property in question was once an island with a slough between it and the river bank. The slough having filled, the island lost its identity as such. The city wants to improve the waterfront and it wants the occupants to clear off. They refuse to move.

In the case is involved the age-old question of riparian rights, long a major subject of litigation in Illinois, with suits appealed to the United States Supreme court and efforts to invoke state and national legislation. A conspicuous case was that of Capt. Streeter, who went to the extent of organizing a federal district on a Lake Michigan sand bar to hold a strip of Chicago waterfront.

Streeter lost one fight after another, but during the active years of his life he never wanted for a following and means to combat the city. So long as he could raise lawyers' fees he was in court, for he could always find legal authority for the contentions under which he claimed title to property in his district of Lake Michigan.

Davenport, let us hope, is not in for a repetition of Chicago's experience. If there is a Capt. Streeter on its annexed island it would be well for the city to make peace with him, rather than get involved in a riparian rights tangle.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AFTER A TWO YEARS' STAY IN CHINA, Chicago's most aesthetically-looking author again graces the Chicago scene. He is Vincent Starrett, bibliophile, poet, and author of detective stories, whose carved ivory profile, mass of gray hair and walking stick are known to the bookmen of the world. Starrett has what is probably the best collection of detective stories in existence, including first editions of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, His Sherlock Holmes collection is particularly fine, and includes first printings of all pieces that appeared in magazines as well as the first editions. Starrett is something of a recluse, although occasionally he attends the theater. Browsing in bookstores is a favorite activity. His latest detective story is "Midnight and Percy Jones."

WHEN THE SOCIETY OF MIDLAND AUTHORS gave a dinner the other evening for Starrett and William Montgomery McGovern, Starrett regaled the assembled authors with some of his experiences in China. One tale concerned the many times he thought he saw friends. Once he saw Alexander Woolcott coming down the hill on a donkey. He knew it couldn't be Woolcott, but it was his living image. Another time he saw Christopher Morley selling melons in a Peking street. And again it was Dr. Logan Clendening, but he knew it couldn't be Clendening because he had just had a letter from him. Then one day he saw some one who looked so much like J. P. McEvoy riding in a ricksha he couldn't help speaking to him. "Hello, Mac," he said, and "Hello, Vinc! When'd you get here?" answered McEvoy.

WOUNDS AND SAFETY.

THOUSANDS of accidental wounds occur daily, a great many made by sharp objects have penetrated bacteria-laden skin. They are quite different from the cuts made by the skilled surgeon who under ideal conditions of cleanliness—may open the abdomen with safety. Nature has a clever way of aiding us in our ignorance and mistakes. Whenever the body covering is broken there is an outpouring of fluid from the vessels and a sheathing of white blood cells which engulf and digest bacteria and broken fibers. Then comes the formation of a new type of repair material, called connective tissue, which fills in the space that has been created. If there is no infection, mending rarely will occupy more than ten days, and unless the infection is extensive the part will be as strong or nearly so—as it was originally. As we know, bones heal more slowly, but solidly. The great enemy of prompt recovery is contamination, and the chief sources are bacteria, bits of clothing, and pieces of metal, wood, and glass. Any foreign substance will interfere, even though it is not infected. The first rule, then, is to remove all dirt and macerated fragments (those which have been cut out from adequate blood supply). Furthermore, blood clots should be cleaned away, as they form favorable nests for the growth of microbes. We can, however, with reasonable security leave a considerable amount of debris for the white cells to work upon and devour. In such an emergency stopping hemorrhage is essential. Pressure is usually sufficient to control blood loss, and a firm bandage—a necktie will do—around the limb above a bleeding point will halt the flow. Such a bandage should not be removed to remain on too long. Sometimes a stricture cannot be applied, as when the wound is in the abdominal wall, high in the thigh, on the chest, or about the neck. Compression from without, therefore, must be used and the region covered with a clean dressing. We also must endeavor to protect the wound from additional damage, particularly bacterial invasion. Tincture of iodine usually is available in first aid kits, and in the absence of one trained in the care of injuries this may be used to good advantage. The wisest plan, however, after bleeding has been arrested, is to wash the site thoroughly with sterile water. Make no attempt to pick away foreign pieces or dirt that cannot be loosened easily in the process. After cleansing, cover the entire area with sterile gauze. It is necessary to get the patient as speedily as may be to a hospital where shock, if it exists, may be treated. If a nerve or tendon has been cut, this, too, demands experienced handling if good function is to be restored.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON.—New Forest commoners, who hold rights granted to their forefathers in Saxons times, are mobilizing patrols in cooperation with the police to hunt cattle rustlers and pothieves. Night raiders, using up-to-date methods, are depleting their stocks.

In the 10,000 acres of Hampshire forest land, originally established as a royal hunting ground by William the Conqueror in 1079, are about 1,500 ponies and as many cattle. They roam the forest feeding grounds in a semi-wild state.

The rustling is believed to be the work of a gang using modern cattle trucks. They invade the forest late at night or in early morning.

The New Forest Verderers' court, which looks after the commoners' rights, has offered a reward of $100 for information leading to the conviction of the rustlers. The court has power to inflict fines, but it cannot impose prison sentences. For this reason the local police have been invited to cooperate.

Officials of the Verderers' court, wearing their green uniforms, are leading parties patrolling the forest in automobiles in an endeavor to track down the rustlers. The local police have orders to stop drivers of all cattle trucks and check their identity.

So far the thieves have concentrated mainly on stealing unbranded yearlings, known as mavericks in Texas, which, according to one theory, are rushed northwards to the Midlands before any attempt is made to dispose of them.

Villagers tell of seeing trucks in the lonely forest glades being loaded up with ponies and cattle at night. By the time the alarm has been raised the rustlers have managed to escape.

The so-called Lauter highway, as it is known, is reasonably clear of snow up to Forest Hills, but south of that village it becomes buried under drifts of Canadian proportions, so deep that snowplows can do nothing with them. Hence the dogged line.

Perez and Victor started off at 8:30 a. m., a heavy bag of mail strapped to their sled, on their route which is rarely attempted at this time of year even by skiers. At 11 a. m. they arrived at their first mountain pass, Lauter pass, where they and their dogs took a well earned half hour rest. They delivered some mail at Villars-d'Irene, barely stopping long enough to dump it off and then went on to the destination, La Grave, where they rested another half hour, leaving again at 1 p. m. The circuit was made at altitudes varying from 4,500 feet to 6,000 feet, approximately.

The dogs carried an average of ninety-nine pounds apiece and made an average speed of seven kilometers per hour—approximately four miles.

INSURANCE POLICY.
Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am writing in behalf of my brother-in-law. He married in Indiana in 1927 and has one child about 7 years old. While married he took out life insurance on his wife. He has the policy and the payments he is making. He is the beneficiary named in the policy. Last spring he was divorced by his wife in Indiana. He still has the policy and pass book in his possession. He says he can continue making payments and collect the policy upon maturity. I said he no longer has any insurable interest in his ex-wife. Therefore he ought to quit making further payments of premium and collect the cash surrender value of the policy. Last December he married another girl. Please advise proper course for him to follow.

O. J. S.
As far as the insurable interest point is concerned, that is satisfied by the fact that he has such an interest when the policy was taken out, but as a practical matter we would consider it unwise for him to continue carrying insurance on a life that is no longer an asset to him. Obviously the insurance payments are secured on a death which not only takes care of the death losses but also of the selling expenses and other overhead, and hence it is a rather sizable sum as far as the policyholder is concerned. The justification for carrying insurance is the need for protection.

MISSING HEIRS.
Davenport, Ia., Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What is the law in Illinois on unclaimed money?
2. Our brother's estate was settled about ten years ago. Another brother died.
3. He had no children and his wife has never made any claim to (3) the money. Does it ever become outlived and (4) returned to the heirs?
4. Who is the one to have the handling of this money—the county clerk or the administrator?

THE NEW PEASANTRY.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—For many years it was the proud boast of America that she had no peasantry. Now there has been created for us what looks like a permanent government fostered peasantry in the WPA.

A cringing, rubber stamp congress [that doesn't care a cuss what it does with the people's money] has recently appropriated another quarter billion of dollars to maintain this and other kindred institutions. With the country out on its feet and hanging on the ropes, the referees refuse to stop the fight, but permits the terrific punishment to continue.

In regard to taxation, it is strange and unaccountable that so many prolific fields have been overlooked by the spoiler. A direct federal tax on radios for instance. And how about a tax of say $5 on every marriage license. This latter might cause a lot of people to count ten before stepping off. On the other hand, why not a $25 tax on divorces? Another splendid field would be a tax on births, a large one for girls because when they grow up they get most of the jobs, while a boy has to be supported by the WPA. This would add a little gambling spice to the proposition.

A direct tax of a penny on every bottle of milk would bring in splendid returns and who in the world would miss a penny.

All this may sound foolish but it is not far out of line with some of the other crackpot policies of the New Deal. This recession, which is the capstone of depression in a state of relapse, will last until an aroused people make such a united protest that even the powers in Washington will not dare to disregard it. We have had enough experimenting.

STATISTICS INTERPRETED.

Waterloo, Ia., Feb. 17.—THE TRIBUNE regularly publishes charts showing the per capita expenditures for such commodities as life insurance, electric energy, furniture, clothing, etc. Did you ever notice that the per capita use of these commodities is almost without exception the smallest in the traditionally rock-ribbed Democratic strongholds? Mississippi and South Carolina, which have never cast a Republican presidential electoral vote since the civil war, are almost without exception No. 47 and 48.

The states which occasionally or usually cast Republican presidential ballots rank high, with those states which vote about even over a period of years usually the top of the list. Does this mean that the states that show some flexibility in their voting contain the least prejudiced, most intelligent, and therefore the most prosperous people—or doesn't it?

C. L. WINTERBORN.

FROM A CONSCIENTIOUS WPA WORKER.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—In respect to the reports supposedly mixed with the workers on several projects connected with the WPA, and printed the trash so that narrow-minded people can gloat with the "I told you so" bunch, let me jot down a few contradictory statements. First, I'm only a laborer employed on a sewer project located at 11th street and Cottage Grove. I have a family to look after, can hardly meet expenses, and yet I and a lot of the men working together are tickled to death to be working. We do our hard work willingly. You don't believe that? Drop over and convince yourselves. We'll show you a spirit exulting in a low wage and actually doing work with a will. Meet some real Americans. You can print my name if you care to.

CHARLES RIVER.

WHO'S LOONEY NOW?

Chicago, Feb. 18.—In an editorial captioned "What's Wrong at Chester?" you recently seemed to wonder how come that two lunatics should have managed to escape from the insane asylum. They ran away because they were crazy. They had a good home, plenty to eat, no rent, taxes, or light bills to pay, and nothing to worry about, yet they took a notion to run away and join the ranks of the unemployed. If that does not actually prove most conclusively that they were crazy (as well as insane), then there is nothing which could prove that the rest of us are sane when we squander billions of dollars, ostensibly, for the punishment of criminals and not one cent in any pursuit which may eliminate the conditions which produce criminals.

DENEEN FACTION BREAKS QUIET ON G.C.P. VOTE FRONT

Plan Disclosed to Enter Partial Primary Slate.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Just when observers had reached the conclusion that all was quiet on the Republican primary front there was an unheralded bustling yesterday in the Morrison hotel—not in the Democratic county headquarters where such happenings are frequent but in the recently somnolent offices of the faction headed by Charles S. Deneen which calls itself the national Republican organization.

Inquiry disclosed that the Deneen forces, which some time ago voted not to put a ticket of its own into the field against the state indorsement by the Cook county central committee, had encouraged eleven aspirants to public office, nearly all of them from outside their own camp, to enter the primary and had planned to indorse a partial slate before the end of this week.

Specials Cause Bustle.

The hurrying about, it was learned, was caused by special delivery letters that brought about thirty workers to the hotel to receive blank petitions for the several candidates and to listen to instructions about collecting enough signatures to complete the petitions before today's deadline for filing. There was some doubt whether all of the petitions would be completed in time.

The only candidates for state office included in the movement, it was said, are Charles W. Vail, veteran of eighteen years' service as clerk of the Illinois Supreme court, who has decided to seek his old office again, and Warren E. Wright of Jackson, Ill., who already has announced himself for state treasurer. Both these candidates made their decisions to run some time ago, but their petitions were being handled along with others at Deneen headquarters.

Local Candidates' Names.

The candidates for local offices whose names appeared on the petitions were:

County treasurer—Carl G. Lueders, vice president of the Sunnyside Oil company, 2212 Sunnyside avenue.

Sheriff—Bert W. Johnson, secretary of the Chicago lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Tax board of appeals—Frank Sampson, real estate, Evanston.

Clerk of Probate court—Attorney Charles A. Wagner.

County commissioner (city)—Harry Miller of the Miller-Chevrolet agency, 1818 Irving Park boulevard.

Municipal court—Attorney Robert L. Floyd.

Sanitary trustees—Attorney Patrick B. Prescott, Dr. Walter L. Blomgren, and Joseph M. Allen, vice president Naylor Pipe company.

Organization to Act.

Harry E. Hoff, secretary of the Deneen organization, said that at its meeting the organization will decide whether all or some of these candidates will be indorsed and whether other independents or some of the candidates put up by the county committee will be included in a slate.

At Springfield yesterday F. Lyndon Smith, head of the Horner state organization, announced that Frank A. Jensen has been added to the Horner slate as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for superintendent of public instruction. Jensen is superintendent of the La Salle-Peru Township High school and of the La Salle-Peru-Oglesby Junior college.

SECURITY BOARD PUTS RELIEF BILL AT $2,333,314,000

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The nation's relief bill for 1933 was $2,333,314,000, exclusive of administrative costs, the social security board reported today.

This included outlays for federal, state, and local aid to the needy. It compared with $2,618,027,000 in 1932, the board said.

Officials said the cost of public relief in December was $194,000,000, an increase of about $12,000,000 over the total for November. There was a rise of nearly 21 per cent in general relief provided during December by states and localities, they added, while earnings under the Federal Works program increased slightly more than 4 per cent.

DR. TOWNSEND STOPS IN CHICAGO ON WAY TO SERVE JAIL TERM

A gaunt man with a broad smile stepped from the Santa Fe Limited in the Dearborn street station yesterday, waved to a nearby group, and said: "I'm going to serve my jail sentence, even if President Roosevelt does grant me a pardon."

The man was Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the pension plan bearing his name. The jail sentence referred to was a thirty day jail term for contempt of the house of representatives during a hearing before an investigating committee in May, 1932.

Dr. Townsend is on his way to serve the term in a Washington jail. He will remain in Chicago until tomorrow, he said.

In Washington Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) said he had written President Roosevelt requesting a pardon for Dr. Townsend.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—Sharply delineated lines dividing the forces of the American Federation of Labor from the Committee for Industrial Organization mark Seattle's municipal primary campaign which will be climaxed at the polls tomorrow.

Nine candidates are in the field for mayor, two of whom will be nominated to compete at the election March 8.

Mayor John F. Dore, seeking reelection, has the active and militant support of the A. F. of L., led by Dave Beck and the teamsters' union.

Dore, recovering from a serious illness, has made only one personal appearance.

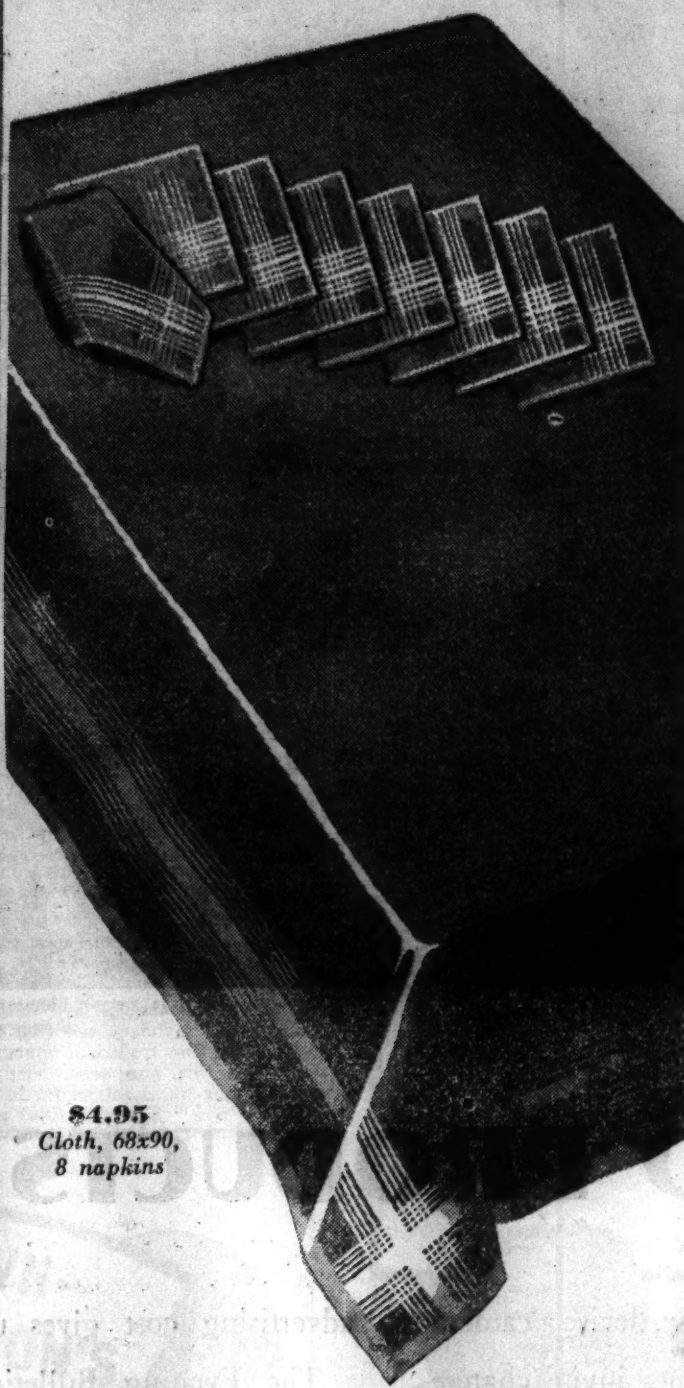

Dore's principal attack was directed against Victor A. Meyers, lieutenant governor of Washington, who is campaigning for mayor with C. I. O. backing.

FOR A MULTITUDE OF GOOD PRODUCTS

From William Penn, the City of Philadelphia took its gift of joyful living in individual homes; from Benjamin Franklin, its impetus in science and invention.

Comfort of the City's dwellings was one of Franklin's studies. His invention of a stove "to give more heat at less cost," is recalled with interest by the modern heating industry.

Philadelphia, home of Franklin Institute, world-leading city in industry, Mecca for inventor and discoverer, is also the market of greatest attraction in all America for the manufacturer of things for home improvement and upkeep.—

For within Philadelphia's boundary lines, the manufacturer of a home product finds his greatest number of prospects in any city in this Nation—the largest group of individual, single-family homes anywhere in America.

Nine out of ten Philadelphia dwellings are single-family homes. More single-family dwellings than in New York City and Buffalo combined; than in Chicago and St. Louis together; than in Detroit and Cleveland. And more than half of Philadelphia's vast number of homes are owned by their occupants!†

People who own homes . . . people who live in individual dwellings, are people on the lookout for home improvements, conveniences, modern comforts. Philadelphians—traditional home lovers, usually buy the new things!

Today, they may plan to install automatic heat . . . tomorrow, outfit the basement for family recreation . . . next day, devise a camera darkroom! Individual homes invite change and improvement impossible with apartments, flats, multi-family dwellings.

Air-conditioning is on the home program—along with refrigeration, added bath and laundry facilities, modernized kitchen and the like. Remember, ninety-one per cent. of Philadelphia dwellings are of the single-family type, using roof-to-cellar equipment!

Far more individual homes! Far more need for home discoveries and inventions! To that unique market attraction for manufacturers, Philadelphia adds an advertising advantage seldom found: One newspaper is read daily in nearly every Philadelphia home! One advertising cost gives thorough coverage!

The Evening Bulletin reaches 85% of Philadelphia families with incomes of $2000 and over; 89% with incomes of $3000 or more. In the top income group, $10,000 and over, The Bulletin's coverage is 94%.*

The Bulletin's circulation, 517,086 net paid daily average 1937, far exceeds that of any other Philadelphia daily newspaper, morning or evening. LOOK TO PRESENT OWNERS FOR BULK OF UNPAID TAXES

Law to Force Seizure or Collection Urged.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Present equity owners or mortgage holders on property delinquent in its tax payments are expected to produce most of payments under the foreclosure law proposed to clear up $220,000,000 in unpaid taxes, special assessments, and penalties which now burden Cook county real estate.

In suggesting new and drastic foreclosure legislation to clear up the real estate tax muddle John O. Rees, director of the committee on public expenditures, charged Friday that the delinquent tax situation is demoralizing the whole economic life of Chicago, is growing steadily worse, and will continue to raise governmental costs, stifle new building, and paralyze the real estate market until it is corrected.

Propose New Legislation.

Rees proposed foreclosure legislation be enacted by the legislature which would make it mandatory upon the county treasurer and county clerk to compile lists of all properties on which general taxes and special assessments have been unpaid for two years or more. Then it would be mandatory upon the county board, through the state's attorney, special counsel, or both, to institute proceedings to foreclose the properties for the tax lien, which is a prior claim to bond issues, mortgages or any other claims against the property.

"It cannot be expected," Rees asserted, "that sales of property on tax foreclosures under competitive bidding will bring in adequate and reasonable sums on most of the delinquent properties. If any considerable amount of money is to be collected it will come only from parties now interested in the properties as equity owners or mortgage holders and not from outside parties not previously interested in the properties."

Present Laws Inadequate.

There are existing foreclosure laws, although they are extremely difficult of application. The county recently applied them to thousands of vacant lots near Park Ridge, and the bids at the foreclosure sale were only a small amount of the sums due in taxes, special assessments, and penalties.

To prevent the foreclosure process being used as a means of wiping off the books the unpaid liens, a process which would obviously be unfair to the majority of property owners in the county who have paid their taxes, Mr. Rees recommended the proposed statute provide that the county bid in properties and perfect title to them in its own name if bids do not reach specified levels.

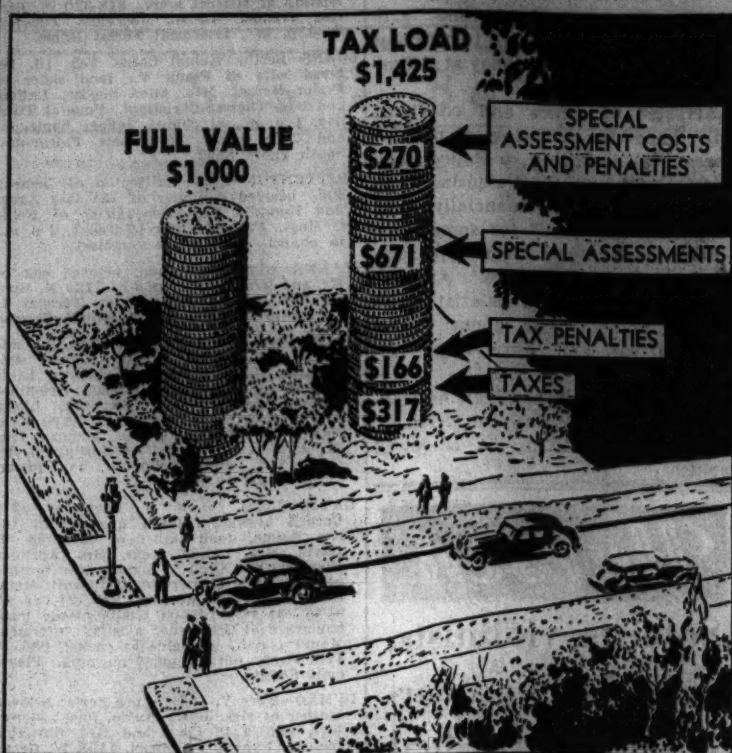

He suggested as a yardstick 40 per cent of the full value of the property as fixed by the county assessor. Where liens of all kinds amount to less than 40 per cent the county would then bid in the property and take title if the owner, mortgage holder, or other bidder did not offer the full amount of the liens. If liens exceed 40 per cent of full value the county would start bidding if other bids did not amount to 40 per cent.

Where Delinquencies Lie.

In his analysis of the distribution of tax delinquency Rees estimated that 40 per cent of the unpaid general taxes are owed by 6,000 prop-

FLINT TROLLEY COACH DRIVERS STRIKE; ASK INCREASE IN WAGES

Flint, Mich., Feb. 21 (Monday).—

(AP)—Drivers of Flint trolley coach, Inc., the main means of transportation in this city of 165,000 population, struck today in behalf of demands of the C. I. O. Transport Workers' union for a restoration of a wage cut. The strike took effect shortly after 1 a. m. when drivers placed their trolley buses in the garage.

Arthur Kierman of Detroit, president of the company, was reported to have offered the drivers a 70 cents an hour wage for February and a guarantee of 65 cents for the year. The men were said to have proposed a 70 cent in the event of average gross monthly income of $60.00.

The men, rejecting Kierman's offer, were said to have proposed a 70 cents rate until June 1, pending further negotiations for a changeable rate based on average gross receipts.

ting the present situation to drift, thereby losing millions in revenue and continuing a paralyzed real estate market condition, there can be no sound argument on the ground of expense. However, specific provisions should be made for reasonable reimbursement to the county in the form of costs to be deducted from the proceeds of collection efforts.

U. S. NAVAL SHIP IS AGROUND ON REMOTE ISLAND

Bremerton, Wash., Feb. 20.—(AP)—

Naval headquarters announced today the mine sweeper Swallow ran hard aground on Kanaga Island in the western Aleutians yesterday, but that its crew of forty reached shore safely, and that the coast guard cutter Spencer had been ordered to rescue.

Details were scant and they varied in one respect with radio reports received in San Francisco saying a coast guard cutter already had picked up the Swallow's crew.

Kanaga Island is 1,400 miles west of Seward, Alaska, in the fog-wrapped Aleutian group. The naval aerological station there is one of the most remote outposts flying the American flag.

Carrying Supplies to Island.

The Swallow left here Feb. 10 on a routine voyage with supplies for the Kanaga weather station, composed of ten men in command of Lieut. R. R. Kellerman.

The navy statement said there was no significance in the fact that the Swallow's voyage was seasonally the earliest ever ordered to the remote Bering sea waters.

Aboard the Swallow were Pharmacist's Mate N. P. Stevenson and Ship's Cook Guy V. Stricklin, replacements for Chief Pharmacist's Mate Royce R.

Gibson and Ship's Cook Clyde Musick, of the original aerological station detail, who vanished mysteriously when on a hunting trip in early January.

Cutter Due in Four Days.

The cutter Spencer of Cordova will arrive at Kanaga in four days, the navy statement said. She will take the Swallow's crew to the naval station at Dutch Harbor, 600 miles east of Kanaga Island, where it will await the naval tug Tatnuck, which will leave Bremerton tomorrow to return the men to Bremerton.

The navy said it had not been advised of the Swallow's position on the rocks. She went aground when maneuvering to make the harbor entrance. It was said she probably would be a total loss due to her remote position and lack of salvage facilities in the area.

The Swallow was commanded by Lieut. A. L. Main. She was of 840 tons displacement and was on regular duty as a supply ship.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The standard description for plays such as "Room Service," which came to the Selwyn theater last night with a Broadway reputation for popularity, is "roaring farce." This label means that the actors do part of the roaring and the audience does the rest—a state of affairs usually followed by peace of mind in the box office.

"Room Service" is an energetic fantasia on the methods of play production in New York by fly-by-night impresarios. If its subject has general application, then there is no need for surprise over the present condition of the American drama. Perhaps the mad and fraudulent behavior of the characters in this merry little opus, as they strive to bring an alleged masterpiece called "God-speed" to its birth-pangs, is the history of the decay of the theater in a nutshell.

The traditional method of the form of play-writing called farce is contained in the three forms of the adjective, "absurd," positive, comparative, and superlative. The required technique of acting also follows this grammatical formula: It must be fast, faster, fastest; loud, louder, loudest, and wild, wilder, wildest.

In its writing, acting, and direction, "Room Service" follows these traditions faithfully. Its mechanism works accurately, and copious laughter results.

The youngest ancestor of its plot is the well-remembered "Three Men On A Horse." Here are the three blades of Broadway once more, absorbed in a crazy Broadway adventure for money-getting; and here also is the quaint simploton who falls into their clutches—in this case a naive young playwright.

The predicaments of this group and their associates are based upon the technique of the hotel business as well as the inside workings of that form of speculation called show business. For the three men on a manuscript and their literary victim are imprisoned in a hotel room for non-payment of bills. The scene in which a waiter, bribed with the promise of a role in the new play, smuggles a dinner tray into the room, after its occupants have become half-starved, is notable for its humorous effect. It is the most gluttonous dinner scene in the history of the drama.

The cast is brisk and competent, and the various types in the story are persuasively depicted. Reed Brown Jr. carries the plot with a vigorous characterization of the shoe string impresario; James Lane and Nat Carter are effective as his comrades; and Clinton Sundberg is amusing as the innocent playwright. Matt Briggs, a veteran of the Chicago company of "Three Men On A Horse," is the bluest roarer as an indignant hotel executive.

Miss Geraldine Brauer's engagement to Richard Collington Streeter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo C. Streeter of Wilmette, was announced by Miss Brauer's mother, Mrs. Paul Brauer, at a cocktail party in her home at 3240 Lake Shore drive yesterday. Miss Brauer attended the University School for Girls and was graduated from Briarcliffe college in New York last year. Mr. Streeter attended the United States Naval academy. The wedding will take place in June.

Handel's Song
Cures Schipa's
Fatigued Voice

When Tito Schipa sang Handel's "Where'er You Walk" last night in the course of his Civic Opera house recital only a person with a heart of stone could have noticed and recorded any flaws in the performance. Here were the enchanting Schipa pianissimo, the Schipa dignity of phrase, the Schipa feeling for exquisite nuance. That most benign of lights, the one about trees crowding into a shade, carried the very essence of blessing.

BUT—heart of stone or no heart of stone, there were flaws to spare in the group to which the Handel air served as encore. The Italian tenor's voice sounded tired, almost husky at times. A forte that started promisingly would turn harsh before it ended; a phrase was likely to boast an unscheduled stop and start somewhere in the middle.

These our remarks apply to the Liszt "Liebestraum" and the Schubert "Serenade," not to Scarlatti's "Le Violette," which closed the group. Michael Wilkomirski, assisting artist on the same program, scratched in the most un-Wilkomirskish manner in his performance of Kreisler's arrangement for violin of the Corelli-Tartini variations. He played an interesting bit of Polish impressionism, Szymanowski's "The Fountain of Arethusa," with a shinningly beautiful tone.

Federico Longas served Mr. Schipa as accompanist; Clara Siegel, Mr. Wilkomirski. The program was a benefit for the woman's auxiliary of the American hospital.

To the Goodman theater last night came the poker faced dance group of Marian Van Tuyl. That these poker faces could relax into the most warming smiles at the end of a number and that their owners were capable of executing maneuvers full of sly humor seemed to lessen considerably the terror which is apt to seize an audience and a reviewer when they are confronted with The Modern Dance.

With the musicianly playing of Raymond Ericson replacing the austere thumps which it is our lot to endure at so many dance recitals,

Rubinstein's Piano Playing
Stirs Audience to Shouts

BY EDWARD BARRY.

What a piano player! Soon after 3:30 yesterday the members of the small audience which had assembled in the Studenbaker theater began exchanging wondering looks. The realization was slowly dawning that they had had the good luck to choose for their afternoon's fun one of the biggest events of this or any other music season.

These people stayed until nearly 6, shouting their heads off and bursting again and again into that hand stinging, rapid fire type of applause which is a sure sign of genuine, as opposed to politely simulated, excitement.

So great a pianist is Artur Rubinstein, the quiet and unassuming little Pole who was responsible for all this pandemonium, that it is almost impudent—and certainly irrelevant—to make a solemn list here of his technical virtues. Such a proceeding would imply that interpretative musicians can be graded according to a system—so many points for tone, so many for mechanical dexterity, etc. One can dismiss all this by saying simply that his pianistic vocabulary is complete, that he possesses the technical wherewithal to convey intelligibly to a listener anything which he wishes to communicate.

The real reason for Rubinstein's greatness is the fact that he has something to communicate. His delicate intuitions have enabled him to discover the musical meaning hidden away within the maze of lines and notes and spaces on the printed page. And when we listeners, likewise by intuition, receive this meaning, we are prepared to swear that the interpreter is right—that this and nothing else is what the composer was trying to say.

Rubinstein's universality of sympathy is as amazing as his penetration. The wonder and freshness of the Chopin mazurkas was as convincing as the really stupendous pronouncements of the Bach C major toccata. And the epigrammatic little "Mouvements Perpetuels" of Palestrina did not suffer at all from the fact that they were played by a pianist who had just finished a complete exposition of the artistic credo of César Franck.

Miss Van Tuyl and her group moved brilliantly through a program which aimed to represent ideas and intuitions rather than those "real" life, three dimensional things into which you could conceivably sink your teeth.—E. B.

Helen Gillette to Wed John Merryweather

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. AND MRS. HOWARD AUSTIN WILL give a small egg-nog party at their apartment, 31 East Elm street, yesterday, to celebrate their first wedding anniversary and to announce the engagement of their sister, Miss Helen Gillette, to John Merryweather, son of Mrs. George H. Merryweather and the late Mr. Merryweather of Highland Park.

Only intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Will (Marjette) Gillette and of their sister and Mr. Merryweather were invited to the party yesterday, and the news of the engagement came as a complete surprise. In the absence of Mrs. Will's and Miss Gillette's father, Edwin F. Gillette, who lives in Pasadena, their brother, Hyde Gillette, whose wife is the former Marie Smith, led in toasting the two couples. Mr. and Mrs. William Shippen Jenks, who announced the engagement of their niece, Marjette, to Mr. Will a year and a half ago, were not here to announce Helen's engagement to Mr. Merryweather, for they have gone to California to spend the remainder of the winter with Mr. Gillette.

Miss Gillette a Member of Chicago Opera Ballet.

Mrs. Will and Miss Gillette made their home with Mr. and Mrs. Jenks for several years, and it was Mr. and Mrs. Jenks who gave them a joint debut tea five years ago at the Fort-nightly. Miss Gillette attended the Santa Barbara School for Girls and the late Miss Elizabeth Riser's school in Rome, Italy. For the last few years she has been interested in dancing and has become a member of the ballet of the Chicago City Opera company. Her talented dancing was outstanding in two or three of the Service club revues a few years ago.

Mr. Merryweather attended the Andover academy and was graduated from Amherst in 1924. Later he studied at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and now he is practicing commercial designing and illustrating in Chicago. No date has been set for the wedding.

News from California tells that Mr.

Looking & Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

The Week's Wash

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 20.—Biggest story here at the moment is the near-panic of the movie makers as box office receipts all over the country take a nose dive of 30 per cent. What this means in actual dough can best be estimated by a review of what the major companies did at domestic box offices in 1936. Loew's (M-G-M) is a subsidiary) grossed $108,781,000, netted $11,000,000. Paramount grossed $107,347,000, netted $3,889,000. Twentieth Century-Fox grossed $51,671,000, netted $7,723,000. RKO grossed $49,178,050, netted $2,485,911. Warner's grossed $35,454,000, netted $3,177,000. Universal grossed $17,408,254, had a net deficit of $1,988,524. Take 30 per cent off these 1936 grosses and figure out how badly in proportion it will damage net returns, and you will understand the nervous palpitation of the cinema magnates. The 1936 figures are interesting, too, because the proportion of net to gross tells you the whole story of corporate efficiency.

If the actors, for whom he's done so much, throw their academy votes to Robert Montgomery, he's a cinch to beat out Muni and Tracy. "Night Must Fall" gives the actor voters a fine peg on which to hang their gratitude. . . . Don't be startled when Kay Francis leaves Warners'. . . . Joan Crawford swooped out of that night spot because George Raft had been given her table. . . . Real background of the rumpuses between Will Rogers' daughter, Mary, and Jimmy Granger's lad, Eddie, is religion. . . . Miss Rogers now threatens to go to England. . . . For the first time, in any recollection, Francis Langford really seems to be in love—with Jon (Hurricane) Hall. . . . Darryl Zanuck's trailer dressing room gift to the Ritz trio has this notation: "Through these portals pass the most beautiful 'boys' in the world." The Wayne Morris-Priscilla Lane attachment has reached such a state that their work on the screen suffers. Directors and Warner execs are plenty upset. . . . After "Test Pilot" retakes, Myrna Loy will go to Paris, Spencer Tracy will go to the hospital and then to Honolulu and Ball-Ball, and Gable will go—I promised not to tell.

er than you could say, "All points west." . . . Wish that Walter Wanger and Joan Bennett would make up their minds. . . . The Manuel Del Campo (Mary Astor) anniversary startled the skeptics. . . . That was Junior Laemmle hop-skip and jumping with Mary Carlisle at the Clover club. . . . Despite reports, the Clark Gable divorce has not progressed. In his original settlement of $300,000 he failed to get a complete release. . . . Glenda Farrell's romance, this week, is Phil Ramsby. . . . Paulette Goddard's first formal test as Scarlett finally got "Gone with the Wind" under way. I think Dave Selznick would have been wiser to accept the $300,000 offer for the script. He paid $50,000 and the profit of a cool quarter of a million dollars would have been a soft touch. . . . Anita Louise continues with Bob Abbott. Brian Aherne and Barbara O'Neill are turning into a four alarm blaze.

Max Factor points out that the blonde era in Hollywood is passing, basing the estimate on his figures showing that only 6 per cent of the glamor girls are now tinting their hair blonde. Three years ago it was 21 per cent. He says that the death of Jean Harlow is responsible for the slump in blondes. Far be it from me to argue with Max, but Carole Lombard, Connie Bennett, Virginia Bruce, Joan Bennett, Alice Faye, Sonja Henie, and Joan Blondell seem to be doing very nicely at the moment.

GUNHAMMERED GOLD

By Luke Short

(Copyright, 1938, by Frederick Diller, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS

Alto McCandless, who framed Poco St. Vrain and made him an outlaw, owns a gold mine on a mountain peak. Two insurance agents, who are brought down by a landslide, persuade Poco to pose as one of the agents. At the mountain camp Poco finds Harry Cardoway, a millionaire, posing as the other agent. The mine millionaire has a lovely daughter, Kate. Cardoway crowds Poco off the cliff and takes the gold. He forces with Two-Way. Posing as a prospector, he is given an escort to Alton. Meanwhile Kate helps escape his men. He secures his identity and promises to recover the gold to save her father from blame. In Alton Poco saves the life of a stranger, Van. He tricks Two-Way and Cardoway into admitting they put the gold on a stage-coach. Poco rides off after the coach. Two-Way, doubting Poco's promises, promises McCandless to lead a posse to St. Vrain and the gold. But Cardoway learns the gold clerk has the gold which was sent off the coach and rides off with it, also kidnapping Kate Sharpe. The posse catch up with Poco on the coach. When they find no gold, McCandless turns on Two-Way. In an exchange of gunfire both are killed. The posse returns to the hotel with Poco, and when they find Cardoway and the gold gone, turn on Poco. The stranger, Van, appears and announces himself a United States marshal.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.
MOB RULE.

Poco looked swiftly at Van, who was watching Hank. Van reached out for his badge. "You'll turn that man over to me, boys, to be tried and convicted and sentenced according to law."

"For a moment they were silent, then some one said, 'What for?'"

"For the theft of a quarter million dollars' worth of gold."

"Whose gold?" Hank asked.

"McCandless'."

Then a man in the crowd growled, "To hell with you, lawman! McCandless is dead. That gold belongs to whoever gets it, and St. Vrain can take us to it. He's our prisoner."

Van said, "Mob law, huh? All right, maybe this will stop you." He stepped forward, raised his voice so that every one in the room could hear him. "I hereby declare every man in this crowd conscripted as an emergency deputy United States marshal. You're all now drawing the wages of the United States government, serving under the rules and regulations prescribed by law. You're all answerable to me for the safe conduct of the government's prisoner to the marshal's office in Phoenix. If this prisoner comes to any harm at your hands, the lot of you will be prosecuted by the government. And—(here he paused to make sure of their attention)—the government can call out the army to hunt every one of you down or chase you out of the country."

It was their surprise, their momentary forgetting of him, that Poco had been waiting for. Van was two steps to the side of Poco.

Poco slowly tensing his muscles, leaped to one side and in behind Van, wrapped an arm around Van's waist, and with the other whipped up one of Van's guns and covered the crowd from under Van's arm. It was so sudden, coming on the heels of the announcement, that it caught them all flat-footed, Hank included.

"Now, gents," Poco drawled, "cut down on me and you kill a United States marshal, your boss. Just to keep you from doin' it, I'll leave and take your boss with me."

He ripped out Van's other gun, rammed it in his back and said, "Sam Van, you back up to the stairs. And don't dodge."

Van had no choice. He started backing toward the stairs, shielding Poco from the guns of the mob.

Suddenly Hank yelled, "Prisoner's escape!" If the boss gets killed while we're tryin' to take the prisoner, that's his hard luck!"

He started to raise the shotgun. Poco's gun roared once, and Hank took a long step backward before his knees buckled and he pitched forward on his face. The clerk ducked behind the counter.

Poco whirled Van away from him, saying swiftly, "Get up those stairs, you fool! They won't take this!"

Van leaped up the stairs, and Poco hurriedly backed the few steps to the angle, put a shot at the lamp on the counter, and dodged up the stairs, just as a concerted shout rose from the posse men.

Van was waiting.

Poco handed him a gun, and said, "Nice bluff. Now let's go."

Van took the gun without a word, then turned it on Poco and rammed it in his middle.

"I meant it," he drawled slowly, quietly. "I'm a United States marshal, and you're under arrest. My prisoner. Give me that gun."

In the thick silence that followed Poco looked closely at Van, heard the mob thundering up the steps, and knew he was licked, and that Cardoway was gone with Kate. He handed the gun over, saying, "That's tough. They'll get you along with me."

Van motioned him around a corner of the corridor, and said quietly, "Out that end window into the awning-roof."

Poco made his way down the corrugated tin of the roof to the corner, then swung himself down while Van watched from the roof.

"Now run for the jail," Van commanded, "and don't make a break for it, son. I can shoot."

Poco turned and streaked across the street for the sheriff's office. He achieved it without a shot being fired and rocketed through the door.

Seizing a rifle from the wall rack, he leaped to the window, knocked out a pane, and slipped the gun through. Van had already shinned down the porch post, and was starting across the street.

Van, on the near sidewalk now outside the sheriff's office, was talking rapidly, and Poco heard him say to a colored porter, "Black man, you take this money, buy the fastest horse in town, and ride for the army over at Fort Benjamin and bring them back here. Got it?"

"Yassuh. I's gone, boss," the Negro replied.

The Negro ducked out of sight down a side street. Van lunged through the doorway, slammed it shut, and faced Poco's leveled rifle.

He smiled a little and said, "That won't get us anywhere, St. Vrain."

Poco said softly, his voice choked with anger, "I don't know why I didn't cut down on you out there in the street. Damn you! Sam Van! You've—"

His voice trailed off. What was the use telling him of Kate Shayne. He wouldn't believe it, and he couldn't do anything more about it if he did.

"I know you didn't," Van replied. "You aren't a killer, son. You may be a thief, but not a killer. I reasoned on that."

"I hope you're satisfied, you damn bloody hunter here," Poco said.

"You didn't know it, son, but I was put here to watch out for that gold shipment. I got evidence from those two hard-cases that you were the one that stole it." A shot ripped through the window now, followed by another. "I'll take you in to face the music—if we can fight off this mob till the army gets here."

"All right," Poco said tensely, and smiled crookedly. "It looks like we're in the soup together. How many guns we got?"

"Enough. And some ammunition."

Poco turned away. He didn't care much whether they got through it or not. Every hour they spent fighting off this mob Cardoway would be taking Kate closer to Mexico. He couldn't leave her—unless he shot her. Poco, his face gray, turned to Sam Van. He wanted some one to talk to him, wanted to hear a voice, wanted to do anything but think.

"Here's your pile of cartridges," Van said calmly. "Make them count."

Harry Parkholder, squat, heavy, wide-shouldered, unshaven, in the tradition of stage drivers, freighters, and muleskinners, was a hard bitten man and, quite naturally, fearless. He hated just two things above all else: Beer, which was a bellywash for children, and injustice. He hated the latter more than the former.

But he liked Poco St. Vrain. He remembered the time Poco loaded one of the stages he was driving on the Whitewater run with his own crowd and fought off a gang of cut throat killers just for the fun of it. And right now, he reflected, Poco was in trouble. A mob had a peculiar kind of guts that a sane man fears, and Harry knew what that mob would do if riled.

Housework, Dry
Red Hands Made
Soft and Lovely

There is one sure way that has never failed to make hands soft, smooth and white. The way Doctors, Dentists and Nurses do . . . and every one knows how important it is for them to keep their hands in good condition.

Hands get rough and red when essential skin elements are destroyed by harsh treatment, dirt, washing, and so. The way, then, to make them soft and white, is to replace these essential elements. To do this, get Mystic Cream from any drugstore or department store. Mystic cream supplies everything your skin needs to keep it from chapping and getting rough and red.

Apply it at night before retiring. It is absorbed almost instantly. Mystic cream is not the least bit sticky or greasy, and it won't stain. Results are quick and sure.

No work will be too harsh. Bad weather need bother you. You will always have soft, smooth, lovely hands if you get the habit of using Mystic cream. This simple treatment never fails.

Mother Says
Small Child
Won't Obey

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

(Copyright, 1938, by The Chicago Tribune)

(N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.)

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Will you please help me find a solution for my problem? I am a young mother, inexperienced in dealing with children, and I have a little boy of 2½ years who has suddenly become a problem to me. It's a question of obedience. I have never punished him for disobedience until lately, and then only on the advice of my husband and relatives who assured me he was getting beyond control and should be spanked for his disobedience."

"As far as I can observe, however, spanking the child brings no better results than just scolding. If I forbade him to do something and he does it anyhow, should he be punished?"

"In the house he gets into things he has been told not to touch, such as sprinkling soap flakes on the kitchen floor, or getting out my best dishes to play with. My little child has a loving and gentle disposition, and I don't want to do anything that will spoil his good temper, and yet it seems he should begin to realize what he can do and not to do things that he is forbidden."

"If you have some booklet you think would be of value to me, would you please mail it to me? I do so want to do the right things for my child and not make mistakes in dealing with him."

Except perhaps for a few variations in detail, this young mother's letter portrays a rather general state of affairs where there are little boys and girls in a family; and where the grownups, with the best intentions in the world, don't understand what makes the small wheels go round, and so are mistaken in their management.

This mother's misgivings as to the advisability of spanking are based on sympathy and intelligence. She is quite right; spanking doesn't work. It may work at the moment, but, as every mother knows, "he may stop that, but he turns right around and does something else." It doesn't work in the long run. And for this reason: That a child doesn't learn anything by being spanked.

And that is, after all, a parent's job, to help the child to grow and develop. These two, growth and development, are nature's plan for him, and if we follow that plan the result is good. He and his mother get along then, and both can enjoy life day by day. How this can be accomplished will be talked about tomorrow.

"How not to say 'Don't Touch'" is a leaflet helpful to parents. It will be sent out on receipt of a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

The Housewife

If there are several members of your family who must hurry to work or school every morning you'll be interested in a new toaster. This new toaster browns four slices of bread evenly and at the same time.

It's built like an ordinary electric toaster except that it's twice as long, so you can place two slices of bread, side by side, on each side.

And the price? Even a slender budget won't feel it. EDNA WATSON.

Helen Gillette to Wed John Merryweather

Gillette is spending a week with the Arthur Meekers, who had as their guests a few days ago Philip Guendall, noted English biographer and historian, and Mrs. Guendall. The Guendalls are wintering in Pasadena.

Babbs Anne Burton Engaged to John W. Westcott.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Milton Burton entertained at cocktails at home, 1448 Lake Shore drive, Saturday afternoon to announce the engagement of their daughter, Babbs Anne, to John Westcott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Washburn Westcott of Boston.

The announcement of Miss Burton's engagement to young Mr. Westcott, who is engaged in business in Chicago, surprised quite a few, but not all, of the young people who gathered Saturday in the Burtons' hospitable living room. Mrs. Burton's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Green, came from Minneapolis for the occasion.

Miss Burton is an active member of the Chicago Junior league. She was introduced to society at a dinner-dance at the Indian Hill club in 1935, and spent that year at Mills Fontaine's school in New York. Previously she attended the Girls' Latin school and the Country Day school in Warrenton, Va.

Mr. Westcott was graduated in 1934 from Amherst college. The wedding will take place in June.

Mrs. Chalmers McGuffie Engaged to Englishman.

From London, England, yesterday came news of the announcement of the engagement of Mrs. Chalmers C. McGuffie, the former Edith Rosenfield of Chicago, to J. Onslow Fane of Eastbourne, Hampshire. Mrs. McGuffie is a daughter of Mrs. Morris S. Rosenfield of the Lake Shore Drive hotel and the late Mr. Rosenfield, and a sister of Mrs. John Howland Stambaugh of Valparaiso, Ind. Mr. Fane is a son of Mrs. Cecil Fane of London.

While the date for the wedding has not been set, Mr. Fane will take his bride to Egypt on their honeymoon. Afterward they will live in his home, which is on the road between London and Southampton.

Mammoth Bridge Party for Woman's Symphony.

"All in a Day" is the name the Woman's Symphony Orchestral association has given to a benefit party it will give on March 30, not at one club or ballroom, but at several different ones. Mrs. James G. Shakman of Wilmette, who organized the opera luncheons and teas last season, is chairman of the orchestral association's benefit, which is to be one of the biggest bridge parties ever given, according to Mrs. Royden J. Keith, president of the association.

One of the reasons it will be so big is because there will be women playing cards in every neighborhood of the city, and in practically all of the suburbs, and the proceeds of each party will go to the association. Among the places already selected for parties that afternoon are Highland Park, Oak Park, Evanston, the Edgewater Beach hotel, the Drake, the Lake Shore Athletic club, the Chicago Beach hotel, and the Woman's Athletic club.

Plan Party for Dartmouth Glee Club Performance.
The Dartmouth College Alumni association of Chicago is making plans for a delightful party to be held April 1 in April when the Glee club comes to Chicago to give a performance. It will be a concert and dance the night of April 2 in the grand ballroom of the Drake hotel.

John J. Goodwillie is chairman of the concert committee, with William Rufus Abbott Jr., president of the association, and Robert S. Critchfield assisting him. Mrs. Goodwillie is chairman of a large woman's committee, which will assist in selling tickets to the party.

Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. George T. Leach, Mrs. Horton Conrad, Mrs. John E. Blunt III, Mrs. William Swarthchild, Mrs. Edwin R. Keeler, Mrs. Frank S. Coffin, Mrs. Thornton W. Sheard Jr., Miss Beatrice Bamford, whose brother, Arthur Bamford, is a student at Dartmouth; Miss Carlotta Lagerio, whose brother, Frank, was graduated there last year and now is studying medicine in Europe; Merriam H. Belling Jr., Mr. Frank Mercer, and Miss Florence Dingle are some of the members of the woman's committee. The committee will meet for luncheon at the Key club Wednesday to discuss plans for the party.

Dana Hall-Pine Manor Head Guest at Tea Wednesday.

Chicago alumnae of Dana Hall and Pine Manor Junior college are joining forces to give a tea at the Palmer house Wednesday for Miss Dorothy Waldo, who is the head of both schools. Receiving with Miss Waldo will be Mrs. Charles B. MacLeod, president of the Dana Hall alumnae, and Mrs. Richard Uhlmann, acting president of the Pine Manor group. Pouring will be Mrs. C. Colton Goodhead, Mrs. James Tatman, Mrs. Charles Ward Seabury, and Mrs. John Denney, among others.

The Chicago chapter of the Connecticut College Alumnae association will hold a luncheon meeting at 12:15 o'clock at the Vassar house next Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon returned yesterday from a short trip to New York.

Lanning MacFarland is expected at some Wednesday from a vacation in Florida. He has spent most of his holidays fishing.

Mrs. Robert S. Pirle and Mrs. Lloyd Adin are expected at home this week from a ten day vacation at Sun Valley, Idaho.

Mrs. Thomas J. O'Garra and her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Weyerhaeuser, will leave for a vacation in Florida this week. Mr. Weyerhaeuser and his daughter Lynn, who have been visiting Mrs. O'Garra, returned to St. Paul last week.

The Arts club has cards out for an exhibition of paintings by Laurencin, Conny, and Gauguin Friday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock.

Frock for All Silhouettes

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Any type of figure may carry this style off successfully. It's a versatile model for all your busy spring days. The lines simulate those of a redingote, and there is the interesting color contrast of plain shade and monotone print.

If you're young and slim we recommend the styling illustrated in the sketch at the left. The neckline is high and plain, decorated only with a ribbon bow. The sleeves are short. Notice that the tucks that define the waistline also lend an illusion of extreme slenderness.

The model shown at the right is more appropriate for matrons, since it has a V neck. In all other respects it is identical to the other version.

Style No. 2073 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39 inch material, with 1 yard of 27 inch or wider contrasting, for the long sleeved dress.

Reefers Make the Streamline Years Younger

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Reefers coats for spring make all who wear them smart and years younger. These coats are the smoothest costume foundation buy for any wardrobe. You will find snappy navy blue affairs nipped in at the waistline, buttoned down the front and glittering with gold buttons. The same sort of coats also boast crisp accents of white pique and a shiny patent leather belt in navy blue or vivid color.

Black reefers lined with swishing taffeta, are the most practical buys, for you can do any number of combines with printed silk dress, with pastel wools made with flared, plaited skirts or with skirt and sweater blouse or fitted bright jacket.

After the navy and black parade see the high colored reefers. Among them are glowing copper colors, in suede-like or diagonal ribbed wools. The raspberry red shades are extremely new and wearable, so are the sage green and violet tones. All boast exquisite tailored details, slant seams going from shoulder to hemline and pockets cleverly inset with snappy flaps. There are as many as six small pockets on the chest. Other coats have deep pockets on each hip.

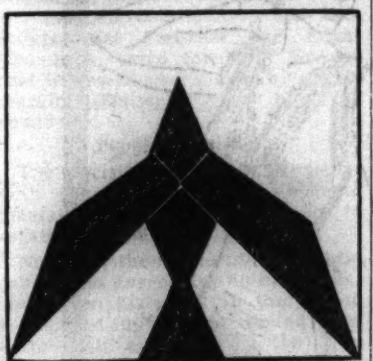

Striped coats in this young reefer or streamline fitted style are going fast. They are eye catching beauties for an early spring day. With them go the vivid colored accents of silk taffeta or thin wool in solid color, repeating the least important color of the striping.

Huge checks in effective powder pastels are the next in line for the coat buyers. There are blue, yellow, pale henna, and other equally stunning shades. Shop for these reefers when the showings are complete, get yours before the best finds disappear!

B'nai B'rith and Auxiliaries to Have Ball on Wednesday

B'nai B'rith of Chicago will hold its third annual ball and entertainment Wednesday night at the Aragon ballroom with ten lodges and nine women's auxiliaries taking part. Receipts will go for the support of a threefold youth program sponsored by the organization.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Swallows in Flight" unintentionally strikes a modern note as a combination pieced and appliqued block. The effective blue black of the bird against a white background creates an ideal coverlet for a man's room. Applique and plain blocks, set together in an alternate arrangement, produce an effect of a flock of birds on the wing. The quilt is surrounded by a 10 inch border and a one-half inch bias binding, and the overall dimensions of the coverlet are 90 by 110 inches.

According to CULBERTSON

HOW MUCH LUCK?

I often am asked the question, "How much luck is there in bridge?" Of course it is impossible to answer this accurately. There is no gauge that will reveal the precise percentage of luck versus skill. As a matter of fact, the question itself is ambiguous, because the degree of luck varies greatly according to the caliber of the four players composing a game. If it is an average rouseme the element of luck runs very high. Expert play, however, reduces luck to such an extent that it is virtually impossible for an average player to beat an expert pair, even if the former enjoys an appreciable advantage in cards. For example, what good did it do the inept declarer, in the hand shown below, to reach a small slam contract?

The bidding:

West opened a low diamond. Dummy's ace was played and declarer then led a diamond to his king and ruffed a third round. Now, with a do-or-die expression, declarer led a club from dummy and, when East followed low, went into an agonizing huddle, attempting to guess whether to play the king or the jack. With nothing to go by he finally tossed in the jack and, to his disgust, saw West gobble up the trick with the queen. West promptly returned a club and it was all over.

An expert would have gone to the trouble of avoiding the club guess, which he would be better equipped to solve than was the actual declarer. The expert would see the chance for establishing spade tricks that would permit club discards. Thus, upon winning the first diamond with the king (not the ace) the expert would lay down the spade ace, then cross to dummy's diamond ace and ruff a low spade. If then would lead a heart to the jack and ruff another low spade. If the spade king dropped on this round (which it would), the need for any club guess would be obviated. Two more trump leads, ending in dummy, would permit declarer to discard both of his clubs on the established queen and nine of spades. He finally would concede a diamond and, instead of losing 100 points, he would chalk up 1,430 points to his own credit.

Corliss Novel Becomes Movie That's Tedious

"I MET MY LOVE AGAIN."

Good Morning!

Tedious and forced I found the screen adaptation of Allene Corliss' novel, "Summer Lightning"—and it DID seem to me that Henry Fonda might have got himself a shave! [Possibly faulty lighting was responsible for his unkempt looking jaws.] The cast, excepting Henry, for whom I couldn't care at all—aside from the nonshave—is an excellent one, though the characters portrayed left this observer cold.

Boiled down, the action concerns the meeting and marriage of a girl and a youth after a separation of ten years. . . . Fed up with her long engagement to Ives, Julie marries almost immediately a fascinating writer whom she meets during a snowstorm. . . . He carries her off to Paris, where she leads a hectic and not very happy life, and gives birth to a daughter. . . . Her husband is killed and she and her child come back to the United States, where they live in the small town home of a beloved aunt who had been a mother to Julie before her elopement.

Love flames again between Julie and Ives—now a serious professor of biology in the local college. But the going isn't smooth, due to an erotic schoolgirl's infatuation for her owl-eyed teacher. . . . However—after interminable blights, the romance comes into happy fruition.

Joan Bennett is pleasing as Julie. Dame May Whitty presents an arresting character study as the aunt—she's the most believable person in the story. Louise Platt as the schoolgirl is the sort of nut she's supposed to be, and other players handle their roles commendably.

But, so far as I'm concerned, "I Met My Love Again" rates as just another movie.

See you tomorrow.

Chicago Teams Place One-Two in Bridge Tournament Finals

R. W. Halpin and M. S. Relly won the pair championship of the central states bridge championship in the Hotel La Salle last night. During the last hours of play they forged ahead of the defending champions, Arthur Glatt and M. H. Besser, who finished second. All are from Chicago. Third place went to Larry Welch and Roland Buck of Indianapolis, Ind.

Forty-eight pairs entered the contest and this field was reduced to twenty-eight during the first day of competition. Among the players was Ase Gutowsky, star full back for the Detroit Lions football team.

The tournament, sponsored by the American Contract Bridge League and the Chicago Bridge association, opened Saturday. Teams of four will start play today.

BY MARY MEADE.

The thick "culture" soured cream which we get from the milkman these days is a uniform product, always the same consistency, always the same flavor, and its method of preparation guarantees it to be absolutely sanitary, an impossibility in the old type of cream.

Since artificially soured cream is apt to be thicker than the kind for which many of the recipes in our cookbooks were developed, it sometimes is necessary to add a small quantity of milk to a batter made with it in order to thin it to the proper consistency. Whether or not this thinning is required may be judged when the batter is prepared.

These recipes are of a new type, prepared especially for the dairy made sour cream.

SOUR CREAM WAFFLES.

(Eight Waffles)
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 pint (1 cup) sour cream
1 cup milk
3 eggs

Sift the dry ingredients together several times. Stir the cream and milk into the mixture vigorously, and add the well beaten eggs. Beat until smooth and bake in a hot waffle iron.

SOUR CREAM GRIDDLE CAKES.

(Twelve Cakes)
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream
2 eggs, beaten

Sift dry ingredients together and add the sour cream, then the eggs. Beat batter until smooth, and cook cakes on a hot griddle.

SOUR CREAM BUTTER ROLLS.

1 cake compressed yeast
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter melted in milk
1/2 cup milk, scalded
2 eggs, well beaten
2 cups sifted flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Sour cream, brown sugar, nuts

Add crumbled yeast and sugar to milk and butter which have been heated and cooled to lukewarm. Add eggs and sour cream, beating well. Add 4 1/2 cups of the flour and the salt. Beat the mixture for 8 minutes and place in a covered dish. Let stand overnight in the refrigerator. Next day remove from refrigerator and let stand in a warm place until double in bulk. Knead in the remaining flour, and roll the dough out to a fourth inch in thickness. Spread with a thin layer of the sour cream, sprinkle with brown sugar and then with chopped nuts, or nuts and raisins. Roll dough jelly-roll fashion and slice in 1 1/4 inch slices. Places slices, cut side down, in buttered muffin pans. Let the rolls rise until double. Bake in a 375 degree oven until browned.

SOUR CREAM DROP COOKIES.

2 1/2 cups cake flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup raisins

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt, and nutmeg. Cream butter and add the sugar gradually. Beat in eggs separately, mixing well after each. Add vanilla. Add dry ingredients alternately with sour cream, beating well. Add nuts and raisins last. Chill dough and drop from a spoon onto a cookie sheet, allowing room for spreading. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Blackhawks, who now are engaged in the business of trying to cut themselves a piece of the Stanley cup cake, will have to delay that slicing, if any, for a bit. And the Detroit Red Wings, who had just about given up hope of ever enjoying a slab of the aforesaid pastry, yet may savor it. Such was the result of their contest in the Chicago Stadium last night, when the desperate Wings defeated the Hawks, 1 to 0, before 14,651.

The Wings, holders of the cup the last two seasons, who have been sulking in the National league cellar most of the year, went into the game two full games behind the third place Hawks, and emerged only a game behind as a result of Alex Motter's goal in the fifth minute of the second period. Mike Karakas, the Hawks' goalie, attempted to clear the puck on the fly, but Motter came rushing up to intercept, and after batting the disc to the ice, slammed it into the cage for the only score of the contest.

'Twas a Rough Night, Mate.

The game contained all of the vim and vigor of an after-school shinny battle, but few of the refinements of a modern hockey argument. Referees Ag Smith and Bill Boyd were unusually lenient in levying only six penalties, considering the rough and tumble nature of the struggle. The customers, for the third consecutive game, gave Referee Smith sundry versions of the bird. Mr. Smith is rated one of the sharpest officials in the big league, but recent rulings, notably on offside, have been causing even his best friends to eye him askance.

The Hawks will not return to the Stadium until next Sunday night's ranger game, following a battle with the Maroons tomorrow night at Montreal and one with the Rangers in New York Thursday.

Hawks Try But Fail.

The stirring tenor of the game was apparent within the first five minutes of play, which found the Hawks throwing rush after rush at the Detroit defense, and finding it too tough each time. The first real scoring chance, however, went to the Wings in the first minute, when Lacombe burst across the Chicago blue line in pursuit of a rolling puck and batted it toward Karakas. The disc struck the right goal post and the Hawk goalie shoved it out of danger. The Wings contended that it had rolled into the cage for a goal, and Manager Jim Adams argued with both referees before yielding.

Best of the Hawk assaults within the opening ten minutes saw each member of the Romnes-Thompson-Connolly line get a shot at Smith, but without profit.

Referees Finally Act.

After fourteen minutes of rough hockey, the referees finally decided to call a penalty, a double one. The defendants were Thompson and Bowman, ejected simultaneously for what was called unnecessary roughness. They were promptly joined by Young, who tripped Gottselle along the north boards.

Karakas put on a one-man show during a two minutes sentence meted out to Wiese for tripping Wares early in the second period. Mike made a half dozen sterling saves, but Wiese was just leaving the cooler when the Wings scored the first goal of the night. A long shot bounded against Karakas' shins, and he tried to lift it over the heads of a couple of thumping Wings. Motter batted the puck down, worked it around Mike, and sent it into the cage in 4:04.

The Hawks frightened Smith in the first faceoff in the third period, but without ever having a clean shot at him. Trudell had an open net, but Wiese and Shill was crowded out of a close up shot by Young. Dahlstrom man swee it in, but Smith fell on the puck.

EXPERIMENTS recently concluded by two professors at DePauw university reveal that basketball has been speeded up 50 per cent since 1931. . . . The survey covered three games and the subjects were a center, a forward, and a guard. . . . In 1931 similar experiments showed that the average distance covered by a player in a basketball game was two and one-quarter to two and three-quarters miles. . . . Since then two important rules changes have been made which apparently have speeded up the game. . . . A regulation was adopted in 1933 requiring the ball to be advanced beyond the center line before ten seconds had elapsed. . . . This season the abolition of the center jump has brought further changes. . . . In the recent survey the center covered 3.97 miles, a mile and a quarter more than DePauw's pivot man in 1931. . . . The forward traversed 3.96 miles, of which two and a half miles were spent on offense. . . . The guard covered 3.87 miles. . . . An electrical apparatus was designed for the tests. . . . The White-water, Wis., State Teachers college has a unique way of informing fans whether or not its basketball team has won. . . . The college tower, located in the center of the campus, is lighted when the team wins. . . . ESCOBAR BEATS JEFFRA; REGAINS HIS WORLD TITLE

Porto Rican Fighter Has Lead Throughout.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Sixto Escobar, little Porto Rican puncher, regained the world bantamweight championship tonight by outpointing Title Holder Harry Jeffra of Baltimore in 15 rounds in the Escambron baseball park.

Both fighters weighed 117½ pounds. The referee was Johnny McAvoy of New York. In winning, Escobar recaptured the title from the same fighter who took it away from him in the Carnival of Champions in New York last September.

Escobar defeated the former golf caddy from Maryland decisively, flooring him twice in the 11th and once in the 14th round.

Game to the last, Jeffra swung wildly in the 15th, hoping to land a lucky punch. Immediately after the bout ended his trainer, Hennie Blaustein, said it was Jeffra's last as a bantamweight and that he never again would try to make the 118 pound limit.

Holds Title Three Times.

It is the third time the busy little island fighter has held the title. He gained recognition as National boxing association champion in 1934, lost it the same year, and then regained the crown by outpointing Lou Salica in New York in 1935. Jeffra outpointed him in last September's fight.

Tonight Escobar was in front all the way. Referee McAvoy and both judges, Nat Fleischer and Edgar Thompson, voted for him. McAvoy said it was Escobar's fight by a wide margin. Fleischer gave him ten rounds.

Popular Decision.

The decision was highly popular with the crowd which was sentimentally strong for the home boy to regain the title.

Not until the fourteenth round did Jeffra land any damaging blows that showed on his rival. In that round he opened up on old wound over Sixto's left eye. But by the 12th, Escobar had both of Jeffra's eyes badly battered and his face bleeding.

It was Escobar's first victory over the Baltimore boy in four bouts. Despite Jeffra's longer reach and greater height Escobar ducked and dodged away from his heavy artillery and held a distinct edge on the in-fighting, where he piled up his biggest point margin.

Jeffra Has to Clinch.

Both knockdowns in the eleventh round came from sharp blows to Jeffra's head. After the second he held and clinched until the bell. In the tenth Escobar had Jeffra on the ropes, swinging both fists, and in the twelfth the champion covered up and backed away as Sixto punished him about the head and body.

At the opening of the thirteenth Jeffra's manager urged him to "pull it out of the fire, Harry," but his gameness was not enough. In the fourteenth Escobar opened up with sharp jabs to the head, then suddenly switched his attack to the body and dropped his opponent to the floor with a hook to the midsection. Between 12,000 and 15,000 turned out for the bout, paying $20.00.

Out of the West Come the Champions!

The Omaha, Neb., World-Herald expects the group of champions to bring back a Golden Gloves' title or two from the Tribune's Tournament of Champions in the Stadium, beginning Feb. 28. Left to right, the Omaha representatives are: Frank Gelecki, heavyweight; Walter Fick, 175 pounds; Billy Walsh, 160 pounds; Victor Marker, 147 pounds; Roscoe Smith, 135 pounds; Levi De Cora, 126 pounds; Steve Locke, 118 pounds; and Jesse Salzar, 112 pounds.

These young men are the champions of Kansas City and will represent the Kansas City Star in the Tournament of Champions. They are (left to right): Tony Novak, heavyweight; Louis Jackson, 175 pounds; Terry Nolan, 160 pounds; Ray MacDonald, 147 pounds; Harry Mills, 135 pounds; Jackie Simmons, 126 pounds; Chester Ellis, 118 pounds, and Beebe Rich, 112 pounds.

'Tis Spring Again; Our Cubs Leave Tonight for Island Camp

From this week on, the thousands of followers of the Cubs, who believe, as they always do in February, that their favorites are bound for the National league pennant, will reckon dates not by the calendar, but by news reports from Catalina Island.

Although the snow still lingers, spring arrives officially at 10:15 o'clock tonight, when nine members of the north side cast, led by Manager Charley Grimm and supported by the customary retinue of trainers, club officials, and newspaper men, will leave via the Santa Fe railroad from the Dearborn street station. Their destination is Los Angeles, where on Thursday they will board a boat for their training quarters on the island.

Busy Evening for the Boss.

Manager Grimm and Trainer Andy Lotshaw were busy until late last night arranging the last details of the trip and checking in the candidates who expect to win regular places on the pay roll. Among the travelers whose names appeared in last year's Cub lineups are Gabby Hartnett, Kenneth O'Dea, and Bob Garbarik, catcher.

Billy Herman, regular second baseman, who went into somewhat of a slump last season, already is in Los Angeles, where he is going through daily workouts at Wrigley field. Billy, although scheduled to leave with the regular outfielders and infielders next week, asked for permission to join the early group because of his 1937 slump and Manager Grimm, remembering how much he needs those dummies of Billy's, agreed.

The White Sox offices will be busy this week preparing for the departure of the first contingent of players for the training base in Pasadena, Cal., next Tuesday. Five of the Sox still are unsigned, but Owner Lou Comiskey expects them all to fall into line.

OPEN THREE DAY SECTIONAL MEET IN LOYOLA GYM

Resume White City Bouts Tomorrow.

Golden Glove Facts

THIS is to be another busy night for Golden Gloves boxers. The Chicago north sectional tournament opens at Loyola university gymnasium, and five out of town teams will be selected. The schedule:

CHICAGO.
EVENT—Opening north side sectional tournament.
PLACE—Loyola university gymnasium.
TIME—7 p. m.
NUMBER OF RINGS—Two.
NUMBER OF BOUTS—Approximately seventy-four.
ADMISSION—75 cents. No reserved seats.

OUT OF TOWN.
Centralia Sentinel finals.
Toledo News-Bee finals.
Oklahoma City Oklahoman finals.
Kenosha News finals.
Milwaukee Journal finals.
Michigan City Dispatch preliminaries.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Several hundred Chicago boys yesterday restlessly awaited the hour of their battles in the north and south side sectional Golden Gloves tournaments this week.

With its most noteworthy entry list in several years the north side sectional opens at 7 o'clock tonight in the Loyola university gymnasium, where approximately 74 bouts will be run off in two rings. The second session of the north side tournament will be held tomorrow night with the championship matches down for a decision on Wednesday night.

Fighting in the south side sectional tournament will be resumed at 7 o'clock tomorrow night in the White City arena ring. There also will be another three day session there with the championship matches composing Thursday night's program.

Pick Teams Tonight.

Sixteen of the 45 teams coming from other cities to the Tournament of Champions also will be selected this week, some of them so late that they barely will have time to jump out of their fighting trunks into full-mans which will bring them to the gigantic meet.

Five out of town teams will be decided tonight. They will represent the Centralia, Ill., Sentinel; Toledo, O., News-Bee; Oklahoma City, Okla., Daily Oklahoman; Kenosha, Wis., News, and the Milwaukee, Wis., Journal.

The Detroit Free Press and the Green Bay Press Gazette will hold their championship matches tomorrow night.

There has been a sensational abdication in the Golden Gloves circles of St. Louis.

For two years a young Swede, Eric Koberg of Belleville, Ill., has reigned as bantamweight, then as featherweight champion of the St. Louis Globe Democrat's team.

It was more or less of a forgone conclusion this year after he had reached the finals in the featherweight class that he again would come to the Tribune's Tournament of Champions.

But, Up Bobs Lou.

His opponent in the title fight was Lou Wallace, a smiling young Jewish boy from St. Louis.

"Get my grips packed, boys," Koberg shouted to his seconds as he floored Wallace twice in the second round with his famous right hand smashes.

The order was a trifle premature. Up popped Wallace to hand out such a merciless load of punishment that Koberg was soundly whipped when the fight ended. The featherweight crown now perches over Wallace's smiling countenance.

Coaches of the St. Louis team, which is made up of two Tournament of Champions veterans and six dashing newcomers are Otis Thomas, Golden Gloves heavyweight champion in 1934, and Paul Spica, a runner up for the featherweight title in 1936. They will bring the St. Louis team here Saturday morning for the Tournament of Champions, which opens in the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 28 for a run of three nights.

CANADA SHINS TINKERING AND ESCAPES SLUMP

Dominion and U. S. Trends Contrasted.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Economic recovery in Canada is being maintained despite the slump in the United States, according to data reported by the Bank of Nova Scotia. Comparative statistics on industrial production, employment and car loadings at the year end show that the economic trends in the two countries have diverged widely since recovery was halted in the United States last summer. Indices of business and industrial activity in the United States recorded declines in the last six months of the year that in some instances were unparalleled for periods of corresponding duration. In Canada the bank's study shows economic activity was maintained at a high level throughout the period.

Dominion Avoids Tinkering.
The results in Canada were achieved without resort to the many schemes employed by the government in this country to stimulate recovery. The study shows that despite the corresponding slump in the United States, the failure of the dominion wheat crop last year, an event which normally proves a severe economic handicap because of the country's dependence on the crop.

The bank presented figures compiled by the dominion bureau of statistics and the federal reserve board to show how widely the economic trend in Canada has diverged from that in the United States in the last six months. The index of manufacturing employment in Canada fell only one point in the last half of the year. At the year end the index stood at 109.9 (1925-29 average as 100), compared with 110.9 in August. In the same period manufacturing employment in the United States fell from 101.8 per cent of the 1925-29 average in August to 88.5 per cent in December (reserve board figures).

How Car Loadings Compare.
The disparity was mirrored by the indices of industrial production. The Canadian index fell from 117.7 in August to 115.8 in December, a little less than 2 points. In the United States production declined from an August level of 106.8 to 76.7 in December, a drop of 30.1 points.
The index of Canadian car loadings at the end of 1937 stood at 76.4 per cent of the 1925-29 average, compared with 79.9 per cent in August. The index for United States car loadings fell from 75.7 in August to 64.2 in December, a drop of 11.5 points.
So far, the bank said, Canada has resisted the effect of the American slump, but it expressed the belief that continued recession in the United States will hurt Canadian business.

Western Union Telegraph Co.

Investors' Guide: Please send me a copy of your report on Western Union—A. C.

Answer: The Western Union Telegraph company operates a telegraph system connecting almost every community in the United States and an international cable system connecting with similar services in nearly all parts of the world. About four-fifths of the domestic telegraph business is handled by this company.

Other activities include stock and commodity quotation services, teletype service, clock service, messenger service, and telegraph money order service. A burglar and fire alarm system is operated by a subsidiary, the American District Telegraph company.

Western Union and other telegraph companies in December, 1937, filed a request with the federal communications commission for permission to increase domestic telegraph rates 15 per cent. Rates had been reduced on June 1, 1937. In asking the increase, the telegraph companies said higher rates were necessary to offset higher operating expenses and to compensate for the general decline in business toward the end of 1937.

Late in 1937 the government filed suits against Western Union and Post Cable and Telegraph corporation charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and seeking annulment of alleged exclusive contracts held by the companies with railroad stations, hotels, and other public places for sending messages.

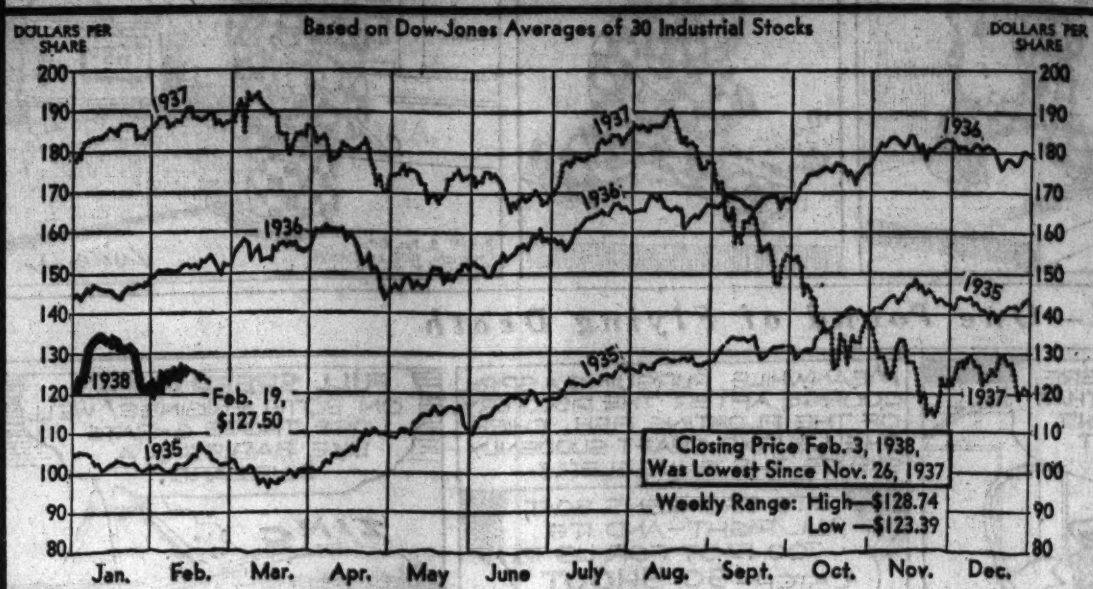

Western Union's 1937 earnings fell sharply below those in 1936. Beginning in April, the company's net income began to rise below that of the corresponding 1936 periods every month. Net income for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1937, declined to $500,312 from $2,188,576 in the last three months of 1936. For all of 1937 net income slumped to $3,325,769, or $3.18 a share, smallest since 1934. Earnings in other recent years were:

Year	Gross Rev.	Net Inc.	Share
1936	$2,430,220	$7,196,130	$6.10
1935	$2,388,512	$2,544,076	$2.10
1934	$2,388,512	$2,544,076	$2.10
1933	$2,388,512	$2,544,076	$2.10
1932	$2,388,512	$2,544,076	$2.10
1931	$2,388,512	$2,544,076	$2.10
1930	$2,388,512	$2,544,076	$2.10
1929	$2,388,512	$2,544,076	$2.10

*Deficit.

Western Union has approximately 1,045,292 shares of $100 par capital stock outstanding. No dividends are being paid at present. Three payments of 75 cents each were made in 1937. In view of the recent decline in earnings the company's funding and real estate 4 1/2% of 1930, 30 year gold 5% of 1930, and 25 year gold 5% of 1951 are regarded as somewhat speculative at present. All three issues are direct obligations of the company, but are secured by pledge of specific assets.

Finds Investor Can't Hedge on Inflation Peril

It required ten years in Germany and fourteen years in France for inflationary money policies to run their course, but in the United States the period would be longer, and because no accurate forecasts for such lengths of time can be made investors who believe they can adopt long range policies to hedge against inflation are indulging in self-delusion.

This is the conclusion reached in a monograph written by Howard F. Vultee and distributed by Shields & Co., brokers. Vultee has advanced the idea that superficial and fallacious statements which have gained currency were responsible for disaster to many investors in recent years.

Likened to Drug Addict.
"Inflation," the monograph stated, "moves in waves, following and being interrupted by violent periods of recession which take a terrible toll of investors and business as has been clearly indicated recently. The simile concerning the drug addict best describes the pattern of an inflation. Each wave of recession will probably wipe out many investors and companies."

"In countries where inflation has occurred the public did not recognize them for what they were until they were in advanced stages. It is significant that every Tom, Dick and Harry in this country has been, and is, predicting inflation?"

After pointing to government policies and their uncertainties as factors adding to the peril of the man with money to invest, the author said that taxation also must be considered and that it was "wishful thinking to believe that investors will be allowed fully to reap the short term benefits, if any, of inflation."

Cites Punitive Taxes.
Punitive taxes, he continued, would probably take a heavy toll of security holders, and examples of such taxes are already in evidence.

Debtors, contrary to the widely accepted belief, the monograph said, are not favored by inflation. It said they have fared poorly in other nations becoming during periods of stress they lost their equities to their creditors or to governments, which took physical possession of the properties. Continuing, the monograph said:

"Ownership of natural resources (oil, metals, etc.), either directly or through equities, is subject to the risk of the foregoing hazards. The experience of gold metal holders after devaluation in being forced to accept depreciated dollars is not without significance in this respect."

Nationalization Held Possible.
"Nationalization or governmental control of such resources is a distinct possibility, particularly in the event of war. Those holding investments in properties located in foreign countries are likely to be subject to nationalization during such periods. There is little basis for investment confidence in most South American or European countries."

"It is well to bear in mind that inflation implies a flight of capital—in this case from the paper dollar. The recent experience of those buying corn, cotton, copper, and sugar speaks for itself. The current collapse in business suggests the risk in other capital investments and the relative attractiveness of the paper dollar. Where can capital go then?"

"There is only one sure way to protect oneself against an inflation and that is to get capital out of the country involved, which brings up a very vital consideration which is widely overlooked. Whereas in past European inflations capital has been able to flee from the inflation centers, we find a remarkable situation in existence in the world today—namely, that there is no safe haven for capital."

ILLINOIS COAL OUTPUT IN JANUARY TUMBLES NEARLY MILLION TONS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 20.—(AP)—A decline of nearly a million tons in Illinois coal production last month was disclosed officially today by James McSherry, director of mines and minerals. The report showed little change from preliminary figures published in THE TRIBUNE Feb. 12.

The state's 140 shipping mines produced 4,230,976 tons last month, a decline of 19 per cent from the 5,221,852 tons produced in December. The January, 1936, production was 5,279,062 tons.

The report said 117 shaft mines employing 30,812 men produced 3,417,752 tons last month, and twenty-three strip mines employing 2,601 men produced 813,224 tons. Franklin county led in production with 480,000 tons, compared with 479,794 tons in the preceding year. Indicated profit for the December quarter was $1,999,049, compared with $1,944,514 in the preceding quarter and $1,706,158 in the fourth quarter of 1936.

Sterling Products, Inc., manufacturer of toilet and medical supplies, showed net profit for 1937 of $9,016,243, or $5.28 per share of capital stock, compared with $8,969,061, or $5.05 a share, in the preceding year. Indicated profit for the December quarter was $1,999,049, compared with $1,944,514 in the preceding quarter and $1,706,158 in the fourth quarter of 1936.

National Supply Earnings.
National Supply company of Pennsylvania, manufacturer of machinery and supplies for the oil industry, reported combined net profit of $7,857,500 for 1937, against preferred dividend requirements, to $5.10 a common share.

The report gave effect to capital changes during 1937 and the merger of National Supply Company of Delaware and Springfield, Pa., Co., effected during the year. Earnings for 1936 on a comparable basis amounted to $4,298,811.

Net income of Ohio Bell Telephone company for 1937 totaled $9,800,411, or $7.54 a common share, compared with $10,781,761, or $7.90 a share, in 1936.

Lima Locomotive company reported net income of $1,019,982 in 1937, compared with a net loss of $251,104 in 1936.

Harnischfeger corporation, Milwaukee, Wis., machinery and tool maker, reported net income for 1937 of $2,371,710, or $2.37 a share, compared with $2,371,710, or $2.37 a share, in 1936.

The Claude Neon Electrical Products Corporation, Ltd., and subsidiaries reported 1937 net profits of $301,704.76, after all charges, compared with $382,541 in 1936.

Steel output production has apparently become stabilized at about 30 per cent of theoretical capacity, the magazine Steel said yesterday.

Variations from this level for the last six weeks have been only a point or two, indicating that buying at this low level is fairly steady. Operations advanced one point last week to 31 per cent.

Weakness in scrap at Chicago and Philadelphia resulted in a drop of 42 cents in Steel's composite of steel-making scrap prices to $13.34 a ton, the level of mid-December. The drop last week was the sharpest since the early part of November. The scrap recession also reduced the iron and steel composite 6 cents to $38.88 a ton. The finished steel composite was unchanged at $61.70.

Markets to Close
Virtually all of the markets in the nation, with the exception of the live stock exchanges, were closed Tuesday in observance of George Washington's birthday. Included in those which will close are the Chicago Board of Trade, the Chicago Stock Exchange, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, and the New York securities exchanges. Chicago banks also will be closed.

Many companies, of course, incorporate in other states. Others, choosing to incorporate in the state where their principal business is carried on. Thus, many companies are incorporated in Illinois and New York and other states where the laws of incorporation are relatively flexible.

Westinghouse '37 Net Income Is $20,126,408

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company yesterday reported net income in 1937 was $20,126,408, compared to $15,099,201 in 1936, a gain of 33.7 per cent.

The company's earnings were $7.54 a share on combined 1937 preferred and common shares, against $5.67 a share on 1936 preferred and common shares, in 1936.

Sterling Products, Inc., manufacturer of toilet and medical supplies, showed net profit for 1937 of $9,016,243, or $5.28 per share of capital stock, compared with $8,969,061, or $5.05 a share, in the preceding year. Indicated profit for the December quarter was $1,999,049, compared with $1,944,514 in the preceding quarter and $1,706,158 in the fourth quarter of 1936.

National Supply Earnings.
National Supply company of Pennsylvania, manufacturer of machinery and supplies for the oil industry, reported combined net profit of $7,857,500 for 1937, against preferred dividend requirements, to $5.10 a common share.

The report gave effect to capital changes during 1937 and the merger of National Supply Company of Delaware and Springfield, Pa., Co., effected during the year. Earnings for 1936 on a comparable basis amounted to $4,298,811.

Net income of Ohio Bell Telephone company for 1937 totaled $9,800,411, or $7.54 a common share, compared with $10,781,761, or $7.90 a share, in 1936.

Lima Locomotive company reported net income of $1,019,982 in 1937, compared with a net loss of $251,104 in 1936.

Harnischfeger corporation, Milwaukee, Wis., machinery and tool maker, reported net income for 1937 of $2,371,710, or $2.37 a share, compared with $2,371,710, or $2.37 a share, in 1936.

The Claude Neon Electrical Products Corporation, Ltd., and subsidiaries reported 1937 net profits of $301,704.76, after all charges, compared with $382,541 in 1936.

Steel output production has apparently become stabilized at about 30 per cent of theoretical capacity, the magazine Steel said yesterday.

Variations from this level for the last six weeks have been only a point or two, indicating that buying at this low level is fairly steady. Operations advanced one point last week to 31 per cent.

Weakness in scrap at Chicago and Philadelphia resulted in a drop of 42 cents in Steel's composite of steel-making scrap prices to $13.34 a ton, the level of mid-December. The drop last week was the sharpest since the early part of November. The scrap recession also reduced the iron and steel composite 6 cents to $38.88 a ton.
